CLEANUP IN NASHUA; INDICT 44

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 10.—Forty-four Nashua men and women, several of them prominent in the Nashua city government, were indicted today by the Hillsboro County Grand Jury here as a result of a sweeping inquiry into alleged bribery, gambling and general vice conditions at Nashua.

One hundred and seventy-one indictments were returned, the most important being those against Chairman Frank H. Wingate of the Nashua Police Commission; his son, Homer F. Wingate, and Patrolman Frank A. Mansur. The exposure of violations of the law at Nashua was one of the most startling in New Hampshire in a long time.

Police Commissioner Wingate is named in four indictments. He is accused in two counts of selling liquor, and there are two charges of bribery.

Homer F. Wingate is accused in two counts of gambling. Patrolman Mansur is named in two indictments charging bribery. The bulk of the indictments were based on gambling charges.

Big Stir in Nashua.

The findings of the Grand Jury caused a big stir at Nashua and are the result of the municipal "house-cleaning" started in that city by Police Commissioner Harry A. Gregg, assisted by two detectives. Some of the more important Nashua indictments are:

Charles R. Congrite, accused in three counts of conducting a disorderly business.

Eva V. Oliver, accused of conducting a disorderly business.

Mary J. LaBrie, accused in three counts of selling liquor to minors and in two counts of keeping liquor for sale illegally.

George Gazette, accused in four counts of gambling.

Francis Downing, accused of gambling in four counts.

Alonzo D. Berry, accused of gambling in three counts.

George Poythers, accused of gambling in three counts.

Harold Stevens, Jr., accused of gambling in five counts.

Frank Hamlin, accused of gambling in three counts.

Five Manchester citizens were indicted for alleged illegal voting. They were Napoleon Lemire, George H. Martin, Alphonse L. Couture, George H. Morrietta and Maurice Fitzgerald.

SWEAR ALL TARIFF WITNESSES NOW TO STOP 'FAIRY TALES'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The House Committee on Ways and Means today instituted the practice of swearing all witnesses. All testimony on the tariff must now be given under oath. The reason given was that some of the witnesses made absurd and extravagant statements and also testified in regard to matters concerning which they had no knowledge. James E. Bennett, representing twenty-four printing press manufacturers, with a total output of $10,000,000 a year, urged the committee to retain the present rate of 36 per cent. duty on printing presses. He declared a deduction to 5 per cent. would cripple the industry.

Representatives of the industries which are dominated by the Steel and Harvester Trusts, manufacturers of hardware and typewriters, automobiles and many other metallic articles appeared.

ASK MORE TIME FOR CHELSEA BRIDGE

Commissioner of Public Works Rourke today petitioned the War Department for an extension of time on the reconstruction of the Chelsea North Bridge. Under the original order the city is obliged to have the work completed by January 30. Because of unfavorable weather and tides the work has been delayed and the contractor will not be able to complete it until April 30.

'Big Bill's' Message from Prison: "I'm Reading Good Books"

William J. (Big Bill) Kelliher, serving a sentence of eighteen years in the Charlestown State Prison for complicity with George W. Coleman in wrecking the Cambridge National City Bank, from which they stole about $300,000, sent a remarkable message to be read at the opening of the Young Men's Christian Association of Lowell, in which he declared he was having more pleasure in jail reading good books than he did when he "was one of the best sports in this country."

The message was carried to Lowell by James P. Ramsey, probation officer, and read at a banquet attended by about 300 of the men who were instrumental in putting up the new Y. M. C. A. building. This is "Big Bill's message:

Tell them that Big Bill has been one of the best sports in this country and that he has tasted all the pleasure of life. He never read a good book until he came into this 10x4 (meaning his cell); and say to them that he has had more pleasure and mental enjoyment in reading here than at any other time of his life.

If he had spent more time in his youth in the reading of good books, he would have side-stepped this 10x4.

This message from Charlestown prison incidentally gives what "Big Bill" considers is a good definition of what constitutes one of the "best sports in this country."

"Big Bill" was a gambler and an associate of that kind of men. He spent a great deal of his spare time of late years in eating expensive dinners, drinking wine, whizzing about in automobiles or buzzing back and forth between Boston and New York on the best-equipped trains.

It was "Big Bill's" special job, apparently, to be on the lookout for "good things." When he was introduced to Coleman, who was a bookkeeper in the Cambridge bank, he began a campaign against the young man that landed both of them in prison and put the bank out of business. Coleman was induced to give Kelliher money on the promise that he would use it to pile up huge winnings on a faro game in New York.

Selectmen Clear B. & A. Depot of Wellesley Trunks

The Wellesley selectmen won a victory today against the Boston & Albany railroad and the Wellesley College trunks.

College girls' trunks fairly flew out of the Wellesley railroad station to make room in the waiting room, so that townspeople could move around there. For the first time in years the trunks were not allowed to hold the waiting room, while the public froze on the platform.

Three times a year the college girls' trunks fill the waiting room, with only a narrow path left open to the ticket window. For the past two days there have been six hundred trunks waiting in the depot to be sent up to the college for the reopening of the Spring term.

Last night Selectmen Coleman and Smith went to the depot, viewed the mountain of trunks rising to the ceiling. Chairman Smith said: "I'll give you until tomorrow morning to clear the waiting room or have the trunks put out in the street."

By nine a. m. today every trunk was out.

AUTO ROBBER GETS $11,000 IN JEWELS

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—"Halpin's runes," the detachment of taxicab police, armed with riot guns, who have scoured the city under direction of Captain Halpin in a search for automobile bandits, still have a task before them. Just after they had stepped into their automobiles and started out on last night's hunt a gray automobile stopped before John Lannes & Company's store in Halstead, only a block from the police station. A man jumped out, walked up to the window, threw a brick, helped himself to $11,000 worth of diamonds, re-entered the car and the chauffeur whisked him away.

HEAR FROM MANITOU; LINER IN SUNDAY

The Red Star liner Manitou, with thirty-five passengers and valuable freight aboard, reported by wireless today as having been 920 miles east of Boston Light at 8 a. m. yesterday. Captain Tribe added in his message that he expected to dock Sunday. The Manitou was in the long list of overdue ships, being expected Monday from Antwerp.

STEAMER MONHEGAN ON ROCKS

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 10.—The Portland-Rockland steamer Monhegan of the Eastern Steamship Corporation, with twelve passengers and crew of sixteen, struck on the ledges of Wood Island, eighteen miles northeast of here, at the entrance of Casco Bay, this noon, and is lying in a bad position, pounded by a heavy sea in a southwest gale.

The revenue cutters Woodbury and Androscoggin, which started from different points on a race of rescue, were reported at 12:30 as two and six miles respectively from the Monhegan.

The U. S. life-saving crew from Hunnewell's Beach has gone across in the boiling sea.

In spite of the gale, there is a fair approach for the revenue cutters to the Monhegan, on account of open water, so it is expected that the passengers and crew can be taken off. It is feared that the steamer will be lost.

The Monhegan left here for Rockland at seven a. m. At nine o'clock she was sighted helpless off Cape Small Point. Her machinery was disabled, and, driven by the stiff gale, she was being driven toward Wood Island ledges. The steamer was flying distress signals. The steam could be seen jetting from her whistle, showing she was calling for help, even though the sound could not be heard above the gale.

CAPTAIN TELLS OF BATTLE FOR LIFE AS SHIP STRUCK

ROCKLAND, Me., Jan. 10.—Captain William J. Ward, who with his crew of four men, barely escaped when his two masted schooner Lena foundered on Fiddler's Reef at the entrance to Fox Island Thoroughfare today recounted the story of the wreck. He said:

We were to the eastward of Monroe Island when the squall struck. It was about 6 o'clock when we piled on to the Fiddler. The yawl boat was lowered with great difficulty, for the spray was breaking high over the schooner and the boat was badly iced. For two hours we struggled to reach the land, seas threatening to swamp us every minute. We landed after five hours about a quarter of a mile to the westward of Browns Head Light. Our clothing was frozen so stiffly to our bodies that we had to crawl on hands and knees, or rolled until we reached the lighthouse.

FOUR ESCAPE DEATH AS ANCIENT CRAFT HITS AT GLOUCESTER

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 10.—Captain S. A. Kilpon, Mate A. A. Mosley, Joseph Ross and Chris Isaacson are now being cared for at the Eastern Point Lighthouse where they barely escaped with their lives when the water-logged two-masted schooner Clara Jane crashed upon the shore between Black Point and Mother Ann during a gale early today.

The crew were taken by surprise, when the Clara Jane misstayed in the strong current off Eastern Point and bore down upon the rocks of the shore. A hasty getaway was made in the boat, and after a battle with the waves the four men reached the lighthouse.

BOHEMIAN, FIVE DAYS LATE, MAKES PORT AFTER STORM

The Leyland liner Bohemian reached Boston today, five days overdue, after fourteen days of continuous bad weather. The first time the thirteen passengers, nine of them women, saw the sun since leaving Liverpool the day after Christmas was this morning in Boston Harbor. Waves swept the decks of the steamship, smashing four lifeboats and flooding the cabins.

Congressman McCall gained the lead over Congressman Weeks in today's caucus of the Republican members of the Legislature held at the State House to nominate a candidate to succeed Senator Crane.

The vote at the end of the 22nd ballot (fifth today), when the caucus adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday, was:

McCall	74
Weeks	71
Guild	9
Draper	2
Lawrence	2

If the Republican senatorial deadlock is not broken by Monday night the Republican factions may join in adopting a Republican primary preferential bill on the Senatorship.

Prominent Republicans, representing the McCall and Weeks factions, began to confer after the twenty-second ballot, on a matter of a direct primary.

A tentative agreement was made as follows: That, unless Monday's caucus shows result and some candidate receives the required ninety-four votes, the Republican factions shall join in adopting a Republican primary preferential bill on the United States senatorial candidate.

Bills already introduced by former District-Attorney Arthur Dehon Hill and by Secretary of State-elect Frank J. Donahue provide for State-wide primaries.

But the proposed Republican bill would provide for separate party primaries and thus allow the Republican majority in the Legislature to carry out the wishes of the Republican voters of the State.

Today's was the third caucus. The first meeting on Wednesday afternoon left the leaders, after six ballots, in this position:

McCall, 72.
Weeks, 67.

When the caucus adjourned last evening, at the end of the seventeenth ballot the leaders had changed places:

Weeks, 74.
McCall, 66.

On the first ballot taken in the first caucus McCall had 63 votes and Weeks 56. Thus it will be seen that as a result

MOTHER SAVES HER BABY FROM BURNING BED

Mrs. Benjamin Crouse fought her way through smoke-filled rooms in her flat at No. 1344 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, today and snatched her three-year-old baby, Sadie, from a burning bed. The mother's hands were burned and her hair and eyebrows were singed. The child's clothing was smouldering.

Running outdoors Mrs. Crouse pulled in a fire alarm. A quick response by firemen checked the fire in the bedroom where it started.

Mrs. Crouse had taken her seven-year-old Ethel and five-year-old Samuel to school, leaving the baby in bed. When she opened the front door on returning home, smoke curled out. Mrs. Crouse is trying to find if Sadie can throw light on how the blaze started.

SAVINGS BANK WINS VERDICT IN LOMBARD CASE

A verdict of $25,698.20 for the Franklin Savings Bank against the International Trust Company was ordered by Judge Sanderson in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court today in the suit of the Franklin Bank to recover the amount of a check paid to the trust company for a note of the town of Framingham, which had been forged by John G. Lombard, the former town treasurer.

After ordering the verdict for the savings bank, Judge Sanderson said he would report the case to the Supreme Judicial Court for settlement on questions of law.

The suit recalls the sensational Framingham note forgeries for which former Treasurer Lombard and Charles S. Cummings, a Boston note broker, are now serving prison terms.

In this case the Franklin Savings Bank gave the International Trust Company a check for $24,122, in payment for a Framingham town note. The check was placed to the credit of the American Banking Company, the concern in which Cummings was interested.

When the Franklin Bank found the note was a forgery it sued to recover for the check it had given.

G. F. BAKER REFUSES TO ANSWER QUESTIONS ON FINANCE SECRETS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The money trust investigation committee today ordered Chairman Pujo to select a physician to visit William Rockefeller at Miami, Fla., and ascertain his condition. The chairman announced he would make public the name of the physician and the time he would leave at a later date.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—That he had never become a voting trustee or director in a corporation at his own solicitation was the assertion made today by George F. Baker, the "Silent Man" of Wall street. During his second day's testimony before the Pujo "money trust" investigating committee, Mr. Baker made this assertion, he explained, because Attorney Untermyer, counsel for the committee, had "made me out to be such a director." The list of corporations, railroads, banks and industrials, in which Baker is a director, reads like a map of America. He is a friend of Morgan, and possibly just as rich.

"How many corporations are you interested in as a voting trustee or director?" asked Untermyer.

"Too many," replied Baker. He added that there were eighty-eight corporations on which he or stockholders of the First National Bank, which he controls, have served as directors or trustees. In thirty-seven corporations he and members of his company are jointly interested with J. P. Morgan, or a member of his firm.

"But you have made me out to be such a director," concluded Baker, "that I would like to explain that I never became a voting trustee or a director in any corporation by my own desire, or at my own solicitation."

Refuses to Tell.

In declining to give the committee information as to the pool syndicate formed in the First National Bank or the First Security Company, Baker characterized the latter institution as "purely private."

Untermeyer showed a determination to get this information and its relation to the purchase and sale of securities for purposes of stock promotion, and after delaying for some time Baker agreed to determine later what he would do.

The average deposits of the First National Bank, said Baker, are $100,000,000, of which $20,656,000 is contributed by 140 depositors for corporations. Baker again protested against any publicity of assets.

"Don't you think," asked Untermeyer, "that publicity of accounts would prevent officers and directors of banks from borrowing the bank's money?"

"I have no opinion on that," said the witness.

Baker said that the stock of the Chase National Bank was turned over to the First National at a price ranging between $290 and $309 a share. He said that this bank had sold over 23,000 shares to an officer of his company, which represented the control.

"A small share of stock," he continued, "is sufficient to control a corporation when it is in the hands of an active officer. A majority of stock is not necessary."

Q.—Did you ever hear of the stockholders of the company where the stock was scattered, as it is in the Chase National Bank, turning out the management?

A.—That is never done so long as the management proceeds successfully.

Q.—Did you ever hear of a case, no matter whether the management was good or bad, where scattered stockholders, holding a majority of stock, were able to oust the management? A.—I don't recollect any.

Q.—And until the management is turned out it is impossible to find out what they are doing? A.—I don't think that is altogether true. It might be so in some cases, and again it might not.

Baker declared that when the Chase bank increased its capitalization from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 its dividends increased from 12 to 20 per cent. The present surplus of the Chase National Bank is $5,000,000, he said.

Controls Coal Roads.

Untermyer read figures showing that Baker and Morgan were directors in coal carrying railroads that handled 81 per cent. of the total anthracite output in Pennsylvania. To this statement and a number of questions which followed it Baker was unable to add any information. He did not recall the circumstances which led to the purchase by the Erie Railroad of the New York, Susquehanna & Western and he was unable to give details of his entry into any of the directorates.

He said that he and President Baer of the Reading road constituted the directorate of that railroad, but that the board had never held a meeting. Untermyer then questioned him as to the right of a syndicate to purchase a controlling block of stock in a railroad and refused similar terms to the minority stockholders.

"I am so much in favor," said Baker, "of treating all stockholders equally, that when I purchased the Central Railroad of New Jersey I offered each stockholder the same price."

He added that he did not think the plan of purchasing all stock at an equal price was practicable, and when asked if he favored an amendment to the law establishing this condition replied:

"I would not burden the railroads with too many laws."

Q.—Doesn't a controlled railroad lose business after the controlling road raises its rate for its own purpose? A.—That is correct.

Q.—And the minority stockholders suffer when the road loses business? A.—That is correct.

Baker had only a faint recollection of the purchase of the Temple Iron Company, with assets of $71,000 and the subsequent bond issue on this company of $3,500,000.

When the agreement between himself, J. P. Morgan, H. McK. Twombly, the Drexel company, William Rockefeller and the Guaranty Trust Company was read, Baker recalled that he had subscribed for one-fifth of the bond issue.

Clashes by Counsel.

While Baker was being questioned, constant clashes occurred between his attorneys, former Senator Spooner, and Fisher Baker, a relative, and Untermyer.

Twice Fisher Baker was cautioned by Chairman Pujo not to interrupt the questions or indulge in controversy. The contest of Baker's lawyers was that Untermyer's questions were so framed as to prevent a full statement of facts.

REPORT SHOWS BIG ADVANCE IN BOSTON SIRLOIN

The high cost of living is still soaring, and in Boston in twelve months the price of sirloin steak rose 24 per cent., according to word from Washington today. The United States Department of Labor has conducted investigations in thirty-nine American cities for the year from August, 1911, and August, 1912. The results have just been made known.

All foodstuffs except sugar and potatoes showed increases in price to the public. Boston showed the highest rise in the price of sirloin steak. For the past ten years the following results show the advance in cost: Sugar, 6 per cent.; butter, 34; milk, 35; flour, 55; potatoes, 46; eggs, 47; lard, 57; hens, 60; sirloin steak, 62; ham, 63; rib roast, 63; cornmeal, 64; round steak, 86; smoked bacon, 100, and pork chops, 105.

EXCISE BOARD WITHOUT A HEAD

The Boston Excise Board met for the first time today without a chairman, the resignation of Samuel H. Hudson having been accepted by Governor Foss. Commissioners Baker and Emery looked after routine business.

BOSTON STOCK EXCHANGE MAY BE REGULATED

While the New York Stock Exchange is under fire from the Pujo committee at Washington, and national legislation affecting that and other security marts is looked for, it appears that the Massachusetts Legislature may regulate the Boston Stock Exchange by new laws.

Members of the Boston exchange are criticized with severity by many who speculate. They complain of interest charges imposed by brokers and say some methods of the latter are unfair.

Brokers are regarded as men who play the game "from the inside," and so profitably that they own limousine cars and houses in the Back Bay or in fashionable suburbs. The brokers say they have not made any money for five years.

This is the last week for filing petitions for new legislation. Several bills which would affect stock brokers have already been filed. Others are threatened. This is not a new procedure. In the past many such measures have been put before the General Court. The public have watched in vain for lawmaking along these lines, however. Either petitioners have failed to appear or committees have not reported.

To Reform Brokerage Houses.

Since the Pujoites began investigating the situation has become serious, even on Beacon Hill. It is said that this year there will be strenuous efforts to reform stock brokerage in Boston.

Representative William C. Kinney has put in a bill to license stock brokers. He says that persons in other vocations have to pay for the privilege of doing business, and that, while he does not speculate, he understands brokers make money. He wants them to pay the municipality for letting them do it.

Representative John F. McCarthy of Ward 16 has a bill to prevent the compounding of interest twelve times a year. He is not a specialist himself, but has constituents who dabble in the market. They complain that certain interest proceedings are a specie of grafting and presumably illegal.

One State House suggestion is that a seat on the stock exchange, which is worth $30,000, more or less, ought to be taxed, as it is property which is bought and sold, and of very tangible value.

Would Incorporate Exchange.

Another legislation proposition is to incorporate the stock exchange so that it may be made directly amenable to State laws.

It is further urged that "matched orders" and all kinds of stock manipulation should be prohibited.

It is said in the financial district that legislators should be careful lest they do something to hurt the legitimate sale of securities.

TURKISH ARMY MENACES SULTAN

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 10.—The Turkish troops along the Stamilia lines today were in a state of insubordination. They threatened to mutiny and sent a manifesto to the Porte, demanding that the government immediately withdraw from the London conference and renew the war. The soldiers threatened to force the Sultan to abdicate if fighting were not resumed.

The European ambassadors in the German capital have succeeded in drawing up a colorless note which will probably be presented on Monday next to the Turkish government.

The advice is given to Turkey in this document to yield on the question of Adrianople, but no suggestion is made of pressure being brought to bear by the Powers to insure the acceptance of this advice.

Roumania to Mobilize.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—An Exchange dispatch states it has learned from an authoritative source that Roumania has notified the Powers that she will begin the mobilization of her army within forty-eight hours unless Bulgaria meets the Roumanian demands for territory levied as the price of neutrality in the Balkan war.

TEACH POLITICS IN SCHOOLS, SAYS JOSEPH WALKER

Politics should be made part of the business of the business man, declared Joseph Walker, speaking this noon before the weekly Coffee Klatch of the Master Builders' Association. Business men at the present time, asserted Mr. Walker, give too little time to civil political questions, thereby shirking the most important duty of citizenship.

"Massachusetts is and always has been the best-governed State in the Union," said Mr. Walker. "We have always been foremost in all reforms, so much so that I [illegible] we are getting too much of a lead in these things.

"But it is possible to improve conditions by putting only men whom we can trust to further the best interests of the public into office. Politics should be made a part of the studies in the high schools."

IRISH VOTES SAVE WELSH CHURCH BILL

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Amid scenes of violent disorder that bordered on rioting, the government won a victory in the House of Commons this afternoon, when the opposition lost its amendment to the Cabinet's bill disestablishing the Church in Wales.

The amendment was defeated 1?? votes of 230 to 190. Tumult prevailed while the vote was being taken and announcement of the result was greeted with cries of "Saved by the Irish."

The Irish Nationalists joined with the Liberals in voting down the amendment. The disorder prevailed for some time, and was quieted only when the Speaker threatened to adjourn the session unless the opposition subsided.

A bill to exclude April 19, Patriots' Day, from the list of legal holidays, and to make May 30 "Historic Memorial Day," was introduced in the Senate today by Senator John H. Mack of North Adams.

MOST OF US HAVE NERVOUS DEBILITY

"I was asked the other day if I was not exaggerating when I said that most of the city dwellers of America had nervous debility," said John Benjes Webb, who is connected with the introduction of Tona Vita in Boston. "I replied that I had made the statement after close observation.

"My friend said: 'I have never been afflicted with nerves in my life. I don't know what the things are.'

"Shortly after when he got me to go he had a shooting pain in his back caused by a knob in the back of his chair. He immediately turned white and said: 'I believe my kidneys are getting out of order. I must see a physician.'

"A few minutes before he had been boasting that he had no nerves. His mind actually was so weakened by nervous debility that he had not strength to reason with himself, but had immediately imagined the worst. If I had not explained the whole affair to him today he probably would have organic kidney disease.

"In a similar fashion a large percentage of diseases are self-created by people addicted to nervous debility.

"Tona Vita acts as a strong nervous tonic which not only helps the body to combat disease, but also makes the body well nigh invulnerable to disease.

"I am glad to see that the people of Boston are waking up to the seriousness of nervous debility and to the great strengthening powers of Tona Vita, for all the drug stores are reporting splendid sales."

PIERCE TO QUIT LEOMINSTER; IS 'OVER-ASSESSED'

LEOMINSTER, Jan. 10.—Harry L. Pierce and family, one of the richest in the country, are to move at once to Brookline because Mr. Pierce believes he is over assessed, and because Mrs. Pierce believes she, her husband and daughter, Miss Beatrice Pierce, can get more enjoyment spending near Boston the money now used for the upkeep of their big Leominster estate.

Mr. Pierce has given liberally to local playgrounds and to the hospital. His estate, Grayling Hall, modelled after an English castle, is a show place.

Fourteen years ago Mr. Pierce brought his family here from Somerville, their former home.

The assessors have taken advantage of improvements to fix a valuation that is outrageous and without justice.

When I ventured to remonstrate with the assessors one of them said: "We will tax every blue spruce you set out." I ask anybody is that a fair attitude?

The assessors tax me for $50,000 personal property. I am paying about seven times what any other person in Leominster is and it looks something like discrimination to me.

But this last year the assessors reached a climax in their treatment when, without any good reason whatever, they assessed Mrs. Pierce for $10,000 in personal property.

If I don't sell this property, my moving out of town won't be the end, for I will come back here and tear this house down before I will further submit to the unjust treatment of our board of assessors.

"The issue is large for three of us, Mrs. Pierce feels that we can get more out of life by being nearer the city and owning some of the money for our pleasure which now goes toward the upkeep of the place.

Mr. Pierce began in Leominster as a poor hand, but rapidly advanced on the ladder of fortune and a few years ago developed phosphate mines in Florida. Two years ago he sold these mines and the deal involved approximately $2,000,000.

Pennsylvania People Rely On Splendid Kidney Remedy

It is with grateful feelings I can testify to the merits of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I had occasion to use for bladder trouble, which my former physician and patent medicines were unable to relieve.

I was troubled with terrible pains in my back which deprived me of rest and sleep at night. A few years ago I had a severe sickness and lay in convulsions for forty-eight hours or more, and the attending physician claimed it was all caused by kidney trouble. Upon taking Swamp-Root I was relieved and have been healthy and have had but little prostrating sickness since. In all cases of tired and worn out feeling caused by kidney trouble, the person so suffering will without mistake do the right thing to give Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a fair trial.

Any person wishing to write me, by enclosing stamp will have ready reply.

Very truly yours,
MRS. S. R. CARSKADDON.

Chinese Woman, an Opium Smoker, Shot by Governor's Edict

SHANGHAI, Jan. 10.—By order of the Governor of Hunan province a woman was publicly shot at Changsha for disobeying the prohibition of opium smoking. A great throng watched the execution in a public place.

Under recent treaties with Great Britain and other countries China agreed to prohibit the use of the drug. On Christmas Day an edict was issued prohibiting people from indulging in the habit in order to save them from a life of degredation.

Notwithstanding this, it was asserted that the manifesto was not being enforced in the central provinces and a formal complaint was made to the Pekin authorities by the British Minister.

The Governor of Hunan evidently received strict orders to enforce the capital punishment in the most public manner possible in order to have a strong effect on recalcitrant natives.

J. E. ROBINSON DIES SUDDENLY IN COURTROOM

James E. Robinson, a hay and grain dealer at Fields Corner and one of the fastest infielders on the old Dorchester Town baseball team years ago, died suddenly today in the dressing room of Dorchester District Court, from heart failure.

Patrolman Willis M. Kempton found him bent over and in great pain in the dressing room. Kempton called Drs. Joseph O'Brien and Henry C. Towle from the court room. They found him dying. Mr. Robinson expired while the doctors were working on him.

James E. Robinson was the sixth generation of a Dorchester branch of the Robinson family, which has lived in the district for over a century. He attended Dorchester Grammar and High schools. Twenty-seven years ago he succeeded his father, the late James E. Robinson, in the feed business at Field's Corner.

He remained single, living with his widowed mother at No. 243 Savin Hill avenue. He was a Democrat.

BOSTON WOMAN TRIES NEW BERLIN CONSUMPTION CURE

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Walter S. Powell of Boston was inoculated today with the Friedmann anti-tuberculosis bacilli. She was the first American to be treated at the Institute of Dr. Friedmann, discoverer of the purported consumption cure.

Mrs. Powell was accompanied to the institute by her husband, who said he wanted a thorough test made.

Smarting under criticism of his refusal to give away any of his bacilli, Dr. Friedmann explained that the administration of the cure was a delicate twofold operation that required inspection, which as yet he had not found time to give. He offered to give the American government every opportunity to investigate his cure, but said that at least three months should be devoted to a comprehensive inquiry.

PORT OFFER STIRS NEW YORK TO ACTION

The Port of Boston directors today received a letter from P. A. S. Franklin of the Intercolonial Mercantile Marine Company stating that the proposition of the port directors to construct a large drydock and the decision of the steamship companies to make an annual guaranty for such a dock has aroused the drydock interests of New York. The New York people are working on a plan to submit to the steamship companies in an effort to retain the docking and repair business there.

MISS CHRISTINE HUNNEWELL, SISTER OF SOCIETY "BUD"

"DIXIE" PARTY FOR HUNNEWELL "COMING OUT"

Like a fairy fragrant Southern garden with its smilax, laurel and lotis will be the Copley Plaza ballroom tonight for the coming out of Miss Mary Hunnewell, youngest daughter of Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell of Beacon street. Miss Hunnewell will make her bow to society amid a flower of rare Southern vines and blooms, and the event is to go down in society's history as the "Dixie" party, one of the most lavish and brilliant of the season. It is said a conservative estimate of the expenses would be $5,000.

The dominant color is to be pink. This will be carried out in the decorations, and all the floral decoration for ballroom door, walls and ceilings will harmonize with the main color scheme. Just 600 invitations have been sent out to members of Back Bay and Brookline society chiefly.

A banquet is to precede the debut of Miss Hunnewell and her party. After the banquet comes an intermission. Miss Hunnewell is then to be introduced to society by her mother. She is one of the prettiest and most popular of the season's buds. On the North Shore she was one of the most noted of the young girls. She was one of the best liked and most interesting of them all.

Miss Hunnewell is a sister of the beautiful Christine Hunnewell, whose election of bearing, charming manner and innumerable accomplishments make her, besides the handsomest girl of her set, also the most attractive.

The other sister is an accomplished pianist. She is a member of the Vincent Club into which the debutante is soon to be welcomed. Miss Christine Hunnewell is always a prominent figure in the Vincent Club and always assists in furnishing the music for the shows.

Miss Christine Hunnewell will be one of the most interesting figures at her sister's coming out party tonight. Few girls are so well liked in society as she and her sister.

The ushers tonight will be:
Prescott Wolcott, head usher; F. Burnham, Leverett Saltonstall, W. Trumbull, J. Tucker Burr, Jr., Davies Sohier, Arthur Adams, C. C. Walker, Charles Codman, Jr., J. BABY SHOWED SIGNS OF LIFE BEFORE BURIAL

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan. 10.—Her aunts for have her two children buried, while the body of one of them was yet warm, led to the arrest of Mrs. Anna Wells of Swanton, on charges of slaying her six-year-old son Lewis and four-year-old daughter Marie, according to the woman's sister, Mrs. George Bombard of Greenfield.

Mrs. Bombard, who is here to help Mrs. Wells, made the statement that the body of little Marie Wells was not only warm, but was believed by some persons to show signs of life when it was taken to the undertaker's in Swanton.

Mrs. Wells is in the Franklin County Jail here. Her fight to prove her innocence is supported by all her relatives, and among them is Mrs. Bombard. The latter has moved here temporarily in order to be near her sister. She cooks most of the meals eaten by the accused mother in her cell.

Mrs. Bombard thought the first suspicion was directed to her sister by what she termed her haste to bury the two children. Mrs. Bombard herself believes the two children died of accidental poisoning.

"After little Marie died," said Mrs. Bombard today, "her body was removed to the undertaker's at Swanton. The undertaking rooms are located in the store of the Swanton Furniture Company. Just as the undertaker was about to embalm the body he discovered that it was yet warm. There were persons present who thought they detected signs of life in the little girl's body.

"It was my sister's hurry to bury the children that caused her arrest, I think. But she never murdered them, nor did anyone else. I think it will all come out in the trial that they got hold of some poisoned food. Perhaps they found it in the barn and were accidentally poisoned. I am certain that Anna never killed them.

Radcliffe Girls Start Movement for Lunchroom Reform

Radcliffe College girls are to have a lunchroom committee, to investigate any and all complaints against the college lunchroom in Agassiz House.

Ever since the prices of some articles in the lunchroom were put up last Spring there have been various "kicks" by the fair patrons.

"Awfully high prices," was one complaint.

Another was that a girl was made ill by food she ate in the lunchroom. After it was ascertained, however, that this collegian had eaten voraciously of oysters and sausages, the burden of blame was considered as being lifted from the lunchroom management.

But every now and then some girl was talked dreadfully about the lunchroom until the college authorities are apparently tired of it.

The Agassiz House committee, which is headed by Miss Mary Coes, the college dean, suggested that the Student Government Association name a bunch committee to receive, consider and formulate complaints.

FILES PETITION FOR INJUNCTION AGAINST WIFE

An unusual suit of a husband seeking an injunction against his wife was that filed today by Joseph Edward Dugan of No. 8 Rossiter street, Dorchester, in which Dugan asks that his wife, Mrs. Emily Behan Dugan of No. 194 Jackson place, Jamaica Plain, be restrained from "selling any more of his household property. The suit was filed in the Suffolk Superior Court, and the appearance of the husband before Judge Morton today brought to light the fact that the couple have filed cross libels for divorce.

Dugan asked Judge Morton to grant him the injunction against his wife, saying that she had sold some of his belongings and he wanted her to be compelled to return the rest to him. Dugan said he and his wife have separated pending divorce proceedings, and that on or about October 23 last she removed household articles like furniture, cut glass and ornaments from their home. Dugan said he had paid for them and was the rightful owner.

It came out that Mrs. Dugan has filed her suit for divorce on November 1 last. She charges her husband with cruel and abusive treatment.

Dugan, who works for the Colonial Supply Company at No. 184 Summer street, Boston, filed his cross-suit for divorce on December 2 last. He accuses his wife of naming Tony Mardove and William Grace in his complaint.

Public Notice!

ON March 1st Mr. Georges, Sr., retires from the Georges business, which he founded away back in 1879, and I take over complete ownership.

When I have raised sufficient cash, through this Reorganization, to make my final settlement with the retiring Senior member, I shall throw off the bonds of conservatism and extend the great Georges policy and ideas into new territory. It is my ultimate purpose to establish a Georges store in every principal city. Negotiations are already under way and several new links in the great chain of Georges stores will shortly be announced.

I am counting on capturing thousands of new customers and thus increasing my patronage army as a basis for the expansion of ideas I have in mind.

CASSIDY DISCUSSES USE OF GLUCOSE IN MAKING MACAROONS

Harry P. Cassidy today discusses the remarkable testimony in the macaroon case, tried yesterday and the day before, before Judge Dodge in the United States District Court. It's glucose that gives macaroons that gummy texture, according to the evidence at the trial. F. G. Washburn & Co., bakers, of Brockton, faced a charge of shipping in interstate commerce macaroons which were not macaroons, in that they were adulterated with glucose.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Macaroons! There's a word that's a very synonym for sweetness and gumminess and toothsome tastiness.

Glucose does it.

That was the remarkable statement made by many expert witnesses at the hearing of the "macaroon case" before Judge Dodge in the District Court yesterday.

True cocoanut macaroons of the delightful gummy sort always contain from fifteen to thirty per cent. of glucose. That's why they're gummy. Macaroons made of pure sugar become hard as they grow stale, and are good only for about two days.

And so the "commercial macaroon"—as the witness styled it—is dosed and soaked in glucose, and the result is a product that will stay soft for months.

Your baker tells you—"Macaroons—Oh, yes, baked fresh today—yes, we bake our own!" But if you send those macaroons to the chemist, you may find they're 25 per cent. glucose—and if there's glucose in them they may be a month old, for all you can tell.

That Cocoanut Paste.

William F. Heide, member of the firm of Henry Heide & Co. of New York, was a witness for the defence. This company makes candy, and almond and coconnut paste. The pastes form a large part of the macaroons you buy. Here are some extracts from Heide's testimony:

'Our cocoanut paste is made of ground cocoanuts, 52 per cent.; sugar, 33 per cent., and glucose, 15 per cent."

That means—on a hundred pound lot of paste, a substantial saving to Henry Heide. Glucose costs two cents a pound. Sugar costs five. On a hundred pound lot of paste that would be a saving of forty-five cents, or thereabouts. And a hundred pounds is only a minimum fraction of a day's orders.

Mr. Heide testified that "the glucose is put in to keep the product soft and pliable. The bakers demand it so. Made without glucose, the paste soon becomes hard."

He denied that the element of cost entered into the price. He denied also that the glucose was to make stale macaroons appear fresh.

There to Fool Customer.

He said it was to prevent the macaroon from becoming hard, and that means that it is there to prevent the macaroon showing its age. It is there to fool the customer, so that he cannot tell, when he buys a macaroon, whether it was baked yesterday or a month ago.

Heide testified as to almond paste also. He said that in almond paste, glucose was used in greater or less quantities, but that they had discontinued it altogether at times.

"Why," he was asked.

"Because of the common prejudice against glucose, held by some people," he said.

The reason why "some people" object to glucose he did not discuss. The reason is the same consideration that prevents you from filling your furnace with ashes. The glucose has a very slight nutritive value—just as ashes have a very slight fuel value. One serves to clog up the body as the other does the furnace grate.

Mr. Heide admitted that his firm formerly used benzoate of soda to prolong the life of the paste. This has been stopped, he declared—another concession to the people's "prejudice."

Burley S. Hall, a Waltham baker, formerly a wholesaler, but now, he says, a retailer, gave some light on the baking end of the macaroon business. He said he made macaroons, had made them for years, and he gave a recipe for macaroons. It called for approximately 12 per cent. glucose.

I TRY TO USE AS MUCH GLUCOSE AS I CAN," said Mr. Hall. He explained that the more glucose the more gummy centre there is to the macaroons, and the longer they'll stay gummy.

A. Haskins Hosmer, of South Hadley, Mass., testified that he had been a salesman of "Heide's Genuine Almond Paste" for years. He said when a customer asked for almond paste he got the regular product of the factory—which William F. Heide testified usually contained glucose.

He Never Told.

"Is the customer informed by you that the paste contains glucose?" Mr. Hosmer was asked.

"No, it wasn't my business to know that," he said.

Seth Holmes, foreman of the Washburn bakery, testified that the regular recipe for macaroons used in the bakery called for 29.03 per cent. glucose. He was shown sample macaroons made by cooks employed by the government. One sample contained 5 per cent glucose. The other was free from glucose.

He characterized the first as "No macaroon—more like a cookie." The second, he said, was "Not a macaroon—what bakers would call kisses."

Dr. Joseph A. De Gay, a New York analytical chemist, who said he had made a study of foods, gave the most surprising testimony of the afternoon.

He said that glucose had as much nutritive value as sugar. He also declared its taste was as pleasing as sugar.

"Then, why, if it is just as nutritive and just as pleasant tasting as sugar, is it so much cheaper?" he was asked.

"Oh, the price has nothing to do with the food value," he declared.

These were the striking points in the testimony. Much of the evidence was of purely legal significance. The verdict in the case is not important. What the housewife should learn is this:

Glucose is used in most baker's macaroons.

It is there to make them appear fresh when they get stale.

It has little food value.

MASTER BAKERS THANK HARRY P. CASSIDY FOR ASSISTANCE TO THEM

MASTER BAKERS' CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION.

Revere, Jan. 8, 1913.

Mr. Henry P. Cassidy.

Dear Sir—It affords me great pleasure to direct these few lines to you, acquainting you of the fact that the Master Bakers' Co-operative Association, or the bakers of Boston, have extended to you a vote of thanks for the able manner you have brought out facts to them worth knowing, and a guide for future development in the bakery. If only more men of your type would get out and do what you have done, and intend to do, it would be a blessing to mankind. Grit and perseverence count.

Yours truly,

J. A. C. Ludemann, Secretary.

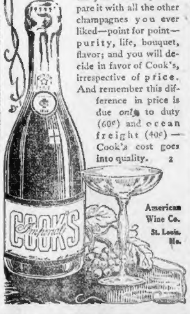

300 ATTEND DANCE TO AID DAKOTA DAN IN IDENTITY FIGHT

"Dakota Dan," who is fighting to prove his claim to the fortune left by Daniel Blake Russell of Melrose, was financially aided in his battle by the 300 persons who attended a dance given for his benefit in Berkeley Hall. The "Dakota Dan" button was in evidence everywhere.

"Dakota Dan" was there himself, wearing his broadest smile. Women clustered about him anxious to sit out the dances, and to all he maintained the same genial deference.

Quality determines the buying choice of connoisseurs—they consider price only in so far as it may buy superiority—they unite on Cook's. Be coldly critical of

COOK'S Imperial Extra Dry Champagne

As you drink it, compare it with all the other champagnes you ever liked—point for point—purity, life, bouquet, flavor; and you will decide in favor of Cook's, irrespective of price. And remember this difference in price is due only to duty (60¢) and ocean freight (40¢)—Cook's cost goes into quality. 2

DENIES RUSSELL LOANS BIASED HER OPINIONS

Mrs. Delia Crosby of Brookline, who resumed the witness stand at the Russell will hearing at East Cambridge today as a witness for Fresno Dan, denied that pressure had been brought to bear on her in regard to old loans made to her son by the late Senator Russell on notes endorsed by her.

Mrs. Crosby said that she was brought to court by detectives to identify Dakota Dan as the real Daniel Blake Russell and that she didn't even recognize the Dakota claimant. After detectives pointed him out, the claimant bore, to her mind, no resemblance to the missing Daniel Blake Russell. Asked to study his features, she did so for an hour, without any better result.

Attorney Scharton, who was cross-examining, fairly shouted at her:

"Isn't it a fact that at the first trial you were satisfied he was Daniel Blake Russell and that's the reason you were not called as a witness?"

"No," replied Mrs. Crosby.

Scharton shouted again:

"Well, isn't it a fact that, since the first trial, pressure has been brought to bear on you on account of your obligations to the Russell estate, consisting of loans made?"

Mrs. Crosby denied this.

This Dog Ate $1.75 and Got Kidnaped in an Automobile

PAWTUCKET, Jan. 10.—A plain, everyday mongrel dog, unnamed officially, but called anything from Jack to Gyp, is today known to be worth $1.75, and the chances are that he may be worth a whole lot more.

The dog came to the cafe of Daniel Shaw and was immediately made one of the attaches of the place.

The dog liked to eat money. Anything from a dollar to a nickel would satisfy him.

Whenever anybody laid money on the bar, it was a question if the dog or the bartender would get the money.

Last night the dog ate $1.75 in cash. Now the police of two cities have been asked to find him, as Mr. Shaw prizes the dog very highly.

This dog was high class in his desire for pleasures. He was fond of automobile riding, and didn't care with whom he went. Mr. Shaw believes that last night after he ate the $1.75 he was picked up by someone in an auto and give a ride. It wasn't an unusual thing for him to do. In plain words, Mr. Shaw says his dog has been stolen, and he asks the police to find him and also to arrest the people who took him.

EIGHT THOUSAND IN WHEELING MAROONED BY RISING FLOOD

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 10.—Wheeling is flood bound. The crest of the flood which passed Pittsburgh last night reached here today, marooned 8,000 persons in their homes, stopped all street car and railroad traffic, cut off the city's gas supply and caused much suffering and property damage.

For 200 miles up and down the Ohio River flood conditions exists, tying up traffic and industrial plants.

Mrs. James McMann, lighthouse tender, lost her life while trying to cross a trestle over the swollen river.

Mrs. Lizzie Blake, sixty, is missing and is believed to have been downed.

PLUMBERS OUT AT QUINCY SHIPYARD

Because of their refusal to abide by the contract system, about seventy-five members of the Quincy branch of marine plumbers and steamfitters are out of work at the Fore River shipyards. The men say they were discharged Thursday when they refused to sign contracts submitted to them.

COURTS OF TWO STATES IN THIS $100,000 CASE

Harris Kennedy of Milton and Charles H. Reiber of Berkeley, Cal., went before the Massachusetts Supreme Court today and asked Justice DeCourcy to give them advice on what they should do with $100,000 which the California courts have ordered them to carry to that State and which they think must be accounted for to the courts of Massachusetts. As the two men outlined their case, it looked as if they were between the "devil and the deep blue sea." They said they didn't know what to do with the $100,000 and wanted the Supreme Court judge to advise them.

The estate was that of Almon D. Hodges of San Francisco, Cal., who died in Boston on November 7, 1910. His will was recorded in the Suffolk Probate Court on March 9, 1911, as a foreign document. The $100,000 was left in securities in the vaults of the Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Company, State Street Trust Company and the Mercantile National Bank of Boston.

Under the will Kennedy and Reiber are the executors and trustees. The California courts have ordered them to "produce" the securities in that State. Proceedings are now pending in California to remove them for their failure to "produce," the two men told the Supreme Court.

Kennedy and Reiber are under $500,000 bonds each to the Suffolk Probate Court. Judge DeCourcy reserved decision on the unusual request.

SHOE MACHINERY CASE BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Business acts of officials of the United Shoe Machinery Company were up for measurement by the Sherman anti-trust act today in the Supreme Court. The court had advanced the government's appeal from the action of the Massachusetts federal court in annulling the indictment against the officials as not charging an offense under the Sherman law.

The appeal of the government from the holding of the lower court was made by Solicitor-General Bullitt. He declared that the constitutionality of the Sherman act as a criminal measure was now beyond dispute.

The combination of from 70 to 80 per cent. of all the shoe machinery businesses of the country into one, he contended, was in itself so great a proportion of the entire business as to constitute a restraint of trade within the meaning of the Sherman law.

The Solicitor General also contended that the adoption of a series of leases containing a so-called "tying" clause is in violation of the law.

CASTRO LANDS; ORDERED BACK TO ELLIS ISLAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Attired like a French dandy, Cipriano Castro, ex-President and dictator of Venezuela, today set foot upon an American Continent for the first time since he was driven out of his country and into exile. Castro wore a broadcloth overcoat lined with moleskin, a very tall silk hat, patent leather shoes, yellow gloves and carried a gold-headed cane.

He lost the opening skirmish of his legal fight and was ordered back to Ellis Island by the court until briefs could be submitted by Attorney George Gordan Battle and United States District Attorney Wise on Castro's application to be allowed his liberty on bail until a final decision is rendered.

Judge Holt announced that he was not sure of his jurisdiction in the case, and said that he desired to wait for an official ruling from the Secretary of Commerce and Labor on Castro's case before entering into the merits of the proceedings on Castro's application for entrance into the country on a writ of habeas corpus.

Castro arrived at the Battery from his place of detention at the Immigration station on Ellis Island, in charge of Inspector of Immigration George W. Moore and was at once taken uptown to the postoffice building for arguments upon his petition for a writ of habeas corpus from the United States District Court.

If the ex-dictator held rancour against the United States and the Statue of Liberty, which he said on his arrival should be pulled down if "Castro were not allowed to land," he did not show it.

WILL ORDERS GIRL TO WED CATHOLIC

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 10.—It will cost little Miss Hutber of this city just $125,000 if she marries a man who is not a Catholic born in the faith before she is twenty-one, which will not be till 1917. This peculiar injunction has been imposed on the girl by a provision in the will of her father, Henry Hutber, who died here a few days ago leaving $150,000.

Fireman Roused by Blaze in Own Home; Several Driven Out

Today was Fire Lieutenant James M. Prendergast's busy day. He sleeps in the house of Engine 46 on Talbot avenue and his home is opposite at No. 537. He was roused from sleep early today to respond to an alarm and found that it was his own dwelling which was on fire.

Lieutenant Prendergast directed his company mates and the fire damage was held to $400.

Then the firemen were invited in by Mrs. Prendergast, who served hot coffee and doughnuts.

ITALIAN LINES NOW TARGET OF SHIPPING TRUST INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—After holding an executive session at which it considered plans for extending its inquiry, the House Committee on Merchant Marine which is investigating the "Shipping Trust," decided today to devote its attention to the aleged agreement said to exist among five transatlantic lines plying between the United States and points in Italy. The agreement between the Italian lines is alleged to be a part of a general agreement to control all traffic between this county and Indian and Southern Asiatic ports.

ETTOR AND MISS FLYNN TO LEAD NEW YORK STRIKE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—When the police definitely learned today that the I. W. W. is to take charge of the waiters' strike here, they immediately began preparations to place guards over the big hotels and restaurants.

Strike plans will be launched at a mass meeting tonight in Bryant Hall, when Direc I. W. W. leaders will speak. Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, woman organizer of the organization, will lead the strike. In addition to causing police activity, the announcement that Giovannitti and Ettor, who led the Lawrence, Mass., textile strike, would take charge of the situation here, caused much anxiety among hotel owners, who fear destruction of property.

BE POLITE TO PARCEL POST, IS EXPRESS ORDER

Barrett of the Adams Express Company has issued a statement to his officers, agents and employes in which he says the parcel post was established in response to a widespread and persistent demand; that it has come to stay and that Adams Express employes are not to adopt a fault-finding attitud toward it. The circular which was sent from the New York office is as follows:

Because of many inquiries from employes and others, it is deemed proper to state the attitude and policy of the Adams Express Company toward the Parcel Post inaugurated on the 1st instant.:

The company appreciates that the Parcel Post has been established in response to a widespread and persistent demand, and anticipates it has come to stay. The company's policy will be to devote its energies to rendering a service even more efficient and satisfactory than in the past, and all officers and employes are directed to exert every effort to that end. PAID $30,000 TO WIN HERA'S HELP, SAYS MRS. ADAMS

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Isabella V. Adams, widow of Al Adams, continuing her testimony before Supreme Court Justice Erlanger in defence of the suit brought by Mrs. Marguerite Gilbert, a former painted known as "Mme. De Brun," declared on the stand that she made out the $30,000 note for which the plaintiff is suing because Mrs. Gilbert said it was necessary to do so to "ward off the fates."

"She told me that I had better make it out at once because myself and my family were liable to go to pieces at any minute, and she couldn't protect me unless Hera, the enchanted one, had some money," said Mrs. Adams. "She told me if Hera got money enough she could protect me and my family while I was on a trip to Europe. I made out the note for $5,000, and then changed it to $30,000 when she said Hera wanted more."

MRS. SAGE PAYS FATHER'S OLD BILL

CARTTERSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 10.—Believing that one John Slocum, a prospector, who was befriended by Dr. and Mrs. William H. Felton in 1855, was her father, Mrs. Russell Sage of New York sent Mrs. Felton a check for $2,500 to cover, with interest, a board bill which John Slocum was obliged to leave unpaid when he left Cartersville. The check will be devoted to establishing a school for mountain girls.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD

If Tongue Is Coated, Stomach Sour, Breath Feverish, Give "Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels.

Your child isn't naturally cross, irritable and peevish, Mother! Examine the tongue; if coated, it means the little one's stomach is disordered, liver inactive and its thirty feet of bowels clogged with foul, decaying waste.

Every mother realizes after giving delicious "Syrup of Figs" that this is the ideal laxative and physic for children. Nothing else regulates the little one's tender stomach, liver and bowels so effectually, besides they dearly love its delightful fig taste.

For constipated bowels, sluggish liver, biliousness, or sour, disordered stomach, feverishness, diarrhoea, sore throat, bad breath or to break a cold, give one-half to a teaspoonful of "Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile, undigested food and constipated matter will gently move on and out of the system without griping or nausea, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

WORKING GIRLS TELL HOW THEY LIVE ON EIGHT DOLLARS WEEK

The announcement by the Commissioners of Social Service of the Interchurch Federation of Philadelphia that no self-respecting girl or woman can live in Philadelphia for less than $8 a week has been sent broadcast over the country as a warning to women and girls who contemplate looking for work in that city.

This $8 per week is divided as follows:

Room and two meals a day	$5.00
Luncheons	1.20
Clothing and incidentals	1.80
Total per week	$8.00

The commission in its statement declares that "so many dangers beset the self-supporting woman who has an inadequate wage or is out of employment for any length of time that we feel justified in issuing this caution and warning."

The question of whether a girl can live on $8 a week is apparently one much discussed by working girls, as letters are pouring into the AMERICAN office dealing with real life on $8 a week. These letters tell of the struggles and triumphs of girls who have made a successful fight and have lived on this pay, and others, and indeed, of failures.

The AMERICAN invites working girls and women to unite and tell how much they can live on.

Writers of these letters should sign their real names and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

For the five best letters, giving the most information as to how $8 a week may be wisely spent by working women and girls, with every detail of information about food, dress and wages, the AMERICAN will give $10 each.

For the seven considered to give the next best information on these points, the AMERICAN will pay the writers $5 each.

The letters must be addressed:

The AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

By this means the newspaper hopes to get the experiences of girls or women in factories, shops, stores, mills and so on, and in boarding or lodging houses either alone or with companions. All should write frankly of their experiences and give others the benefit of them.

Health Big Asset.

Editor AMERICAN:

A working girl desiring a home, decent companionship and, above all, the assurance that she can maintain her respectibility, by inserting an ad. in the Boston AMERICAN requesting board with a respectable widow or in small family—(references exchanged)—at $4 per week, can obtain the same. By doing her own laundry work she has $4 left with which to buy clothes, pay car fare and save for amusements and incidentals.

This limited amount enables a thrifty girl to obtain all these things in moderation. But what of the proverbial rainy day? But the indicted mill owners of Lawrence reply.

The $8 per week girl can exist in decency if she retains her health. But what of the vast number of girls earning decidedly less?

The answer suggests such horrible possibilities that the subject must be left to those responsible for the deplorable condition of the underpaid American working girl.

"Do Your Own Cooking."

Editor AMERICAN:

Enclosed list will show what can be done on $8 a week if a girl really wants to (try. By doing her own cooking she can have better food at less cost than at a restaurant and she can save a dollar. There are very few working women who cannot dress nicely on $78 per year as allowed in my list, which follows:

Room	$1.50
Washing	.25
Bread	.05
Tea, coffee and cocoa	.10
Condensed milk	.10
Sugar	.05
Butter	.20
Eggs	.25
Meat	.60
Potatoes	.20
Vegetables	.25
Luxuries	.50
Bank	1.00
Clothing	1.50
Amusements	.04
Total	$8.00

I hope this will help someone who is willing to try.

How One Girl Gets Along.

Editor AMERICAN:

I live with a private family where board is $4.75 (excellent, too). I can do a little washing and ironing. I pay 60 cents for carfares and every other week send out some washing for 75 cents. Insurance costs me 10 cents, theatre 25 cents, a total of $6.45 a week. The next week I don't send any washing, which leaves $1.55 for clothes. I look after the landlady's children one evening each week for 35 cents, which leaves me $1.90. So I have nearly $2.00, out of which I usually save some.

Hoping this may help some one, for I have been happy since I found out how.

GRACE SULLIVAN.

No. 60 Moseley street, Dorchester.

Says It Can't Be Done.

Editor AMERICAN:

No girl can live on $8 a week. Before I married I earned $10 a week. My room cost $3, my laundry 75 cents as I had to pay 20 cents for a plain shirt waist, and it took two every week besides my other clothes. I gave 35 cents to the church, 60 cents car fare, which amounts to $4.70. My meals I got for myself—mostly bake-house food. My food cost me about $3.70, making a total of $8.40.

I lived this way so I could go to see my parents once in every two years. You see, I had to pay for clothes, doctor, dentist and my fare home, which was $16. My home is on Prince Edward Island. Doing all this, I saved $1.80 a week, but it was not living; only existing.

NEWTON.

No. 335 Livingston st., Auburndale.

Suggests Girls' Lodging House.

Editor AMERICAN:

I have read in the AMERICAN the question, can a woman live on less than $8 a week. "I roomed out" and found the best way to live is to get a light housekeeping room and do my own cooking. Pay about $2 a week for a room and 50 cent a day for fuel and food, which would make a total of $3.50 a week. That would leave $2.50 for clothing.

Of course, one cannot get a very nice room for $2. I paid $4, for a room last Winter. It cost me $7 a week to live.

I think it would be a good idea for someone to open up a lodging house somewhere in Boston and have ten sleeping rooms and two girls in each room and ask for room and board $4 a week for each girl. Then a girl that only gets $7 or $8 a week would have enough to dress on and put a little away each week. The boarding mistress would be making money too. Twenty girls at $4 a week would give the proprietor $80. Then she would pay out per week:

Rent	$15.00
Food	40.00
Fuel	7.00
Gas	2.00
Maid	6.00
Total	$70.00

That would leave $10 a week. In that way a girl could make a good living and be happy. I will close, hoping I have given some good ideas.

Only One Way To Stomach Health

Eat Three Meals a Day and Let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Digest Them. The Stomach Soon Recovers After This Brief Rest.

The very worst thing you can do is to starve yourself to overcome stomach misery. Make your meals just as comprehensive as possible. Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets freely for a while and all trace of stomach trouble will be gone. Dieting is a fallacy. The intensive farming and gardening of the present day causes such quick results that our dietary is lacking in the quantity of flesh-forming elements of former days. Thus we get a sur plus of starch; meats are often despoiled of much of their nutritive quality; the soil is depleted of the amount of vegetable salts it ought to have. We do not obtain the natural ripened fruits and vegetables, hence the stomach requires assistance to digest an overabundance of fibrous material and take care of fruit acids that Nature had no chance to convert into grape sugar. So we need more pepsin than the system can supply, more diastase, more of the natural tonic and preservative properties which ripened vegetation should give us. This deficiency is made up in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is the only way to have stomach-health under modern conditions.

You Can Make Every Meal Feel Sung

Try just one box and you will never want to be without this wonderful remedy for stomach troubles. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain six ingredients, one grain of which will digest 3,000 grains of food. They are so entirely harmless because they have absolutely no effect on the system one way or another except to do just the one thing—digest food.

Every drug tore sells and recommends Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The price is 50 cents per box.

GRANDMOTHER USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER FADED OR GRAY HAIR

Mixed With Sulphur It Makes Hair Soft, Beautiful; Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But the brewing at home is musty and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting Wyeth's, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is excellent for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

REFUSAL TO BE MOTHER IS NOT DIVORCE CAUSE

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—According to the decision of Judge Cohen, the refusal of a wife to bear children for her husband does not constitute grounds for a divorce decree. This opinion was handed down in the suit of George A. Wanser, an Oakland business man, who brought suit for divorce on that ground against Tina N. Wanser, his wife. The Wansers live in Dawson street in the Oakland district and move in the best of society in that fashionable neighborhood.

Wanser testified that his wife had said, "I want to be a single married woman." Mrs. Wanser declared that their marital trouble was of another sort. She said she could not live in the same house with her mother-in-law, who persisted in talking spiritualism, until she, Mrs. Wanser, was a nervous wreck. She declared that she had expressed no objection to raising a family, but that she could not do it and listen to her mother-in-law's dissertation on spiritualism all the while.

HURLEY WAITS TO POUNCE UPON "EASIEST WAY"

SALEM, Jan. 10.—"The Easiest Way," Eugene Walter's play which was closed out of Boston by Mayor John F., Jr., is to be greeted here by the cagle eye of Mayor John F., Sr., when it arrives and opens at the Empire Theatre on Monday evening.

It might be well to explain that Mayor John F. Hurley declares he is from point of service entitled to be referred to as "John F., Sr.," this being required to differentiate him from Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston.

Mayor John F., Sr., today made this statement:

"I'm ready for 'The Easiest Way.' I understand the objectionable features have been eliminated. But they've got to show me. I'm going to have a talk with Manager Daniel F. Landry about it. If the things that made John F., Jr., quail, are still in the show it is no play for Salem and I'll bar it."

25 CENT "DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR AND DANDRUFF—GROWS HAIR

Don't pay 50 cents for worthless hair tonics. Use old reliable, harmless "Danderine"—Get results.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which, if not remedied, causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair. Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

What Has Gone Before

Katie Kerrigan, Annie Lawrence and Mamie Malloy, three girls working in a New York East Side cigarette factory, are chums. Ainsleigh Wharton, proprietor of the factory, offers Mamie his love, but not marriage. Annie, seeing what is happening, opens Mamie's eyes by telling Mamie that her own little girl is Ainsleigh Wharton's child. Dick Malone, who has pugilistic ambitions and also works in the factory, asks Katie to marry him. Katie accepts. Annie's father, an irreclaimable drunkard, comes to the workroom and demands her wages to buy drink. He threatens her and is about to strike her when Jack Fallon, Mamie's sweetheart, enters and ejects him. Jack is telling Mamie of his love for her, and that he is working on a patent which, if successful, will revolutionize the chairmaking industry, at which he is employed, when Wharton enters. A thrilling scene follows, in which the two men pass heated words. Mamie spurns Wharton and tells him that she intends to marry Jack Fallon. Wharton resolves to have Mamie arrested for a crime she never committed and so has Thomas Bates, his foreman and spy, hide $100 in bills in Mamie's coat. Wharton raises a cry that he has been robbed. The money is found hidden in Mamie's coat, and she is arrested despite honest Jack's threat to give Wharton a taste of the "arm of an honest workingman."

Now Go On with the Story

PART ONE

WHARTON put up his hand, restraining Annie. "Yes, Mamie Malloy," he replied, "but I do not for one moment believe she is guilty. Others may have sneaked in my office during my absence. No honest person will object to being searched."

"May I speak, Mr. Wharton," said Bates, moving into the circle which had formed about the girl and her employer. "I know I am only an humble servant in your employ, but I would like to be permitted to speak."

Bates was once more bowing and scraping before Wharton.

"What is it, Bates?" asked Wharton.

"Miss Malloy, sir. I saw her when she left your office, sir. She ran upstairs hurriedly, Mr. Wharton, too fast, I thought—so I followed her, as was my duty as your inspector, sir, and I saw her slip something between the lining of her coat and its pocket. Of course it may have been only her handkerchief, but each day I have noticed the same bulge in her coat, but I thought you ought to know it."

"How dare you, Bates, thus publicly throw suspicion upon my most valued employe," said Wharton, with pretended sternness. "You will be very fortunate if you don't get your discharge for this."

"I am only trying to do my duty, Mr. Wharton," said he humbly.

"Search My Jacket!"

"Search my jacket first, Mr. Officer," said Mamie, facing the policeman. "I am an honest girl, and I have no fear."

"This one is her jacket, Mr. Officer," said Bates, walking to the end of the room where the outer garments of the factory hands were hung.

"How do you know that?" asked Mamie, quickly.

"Because I am the inspector of the factory and it is my business to know," replied Bates, maliciously.

"Go ahead, officer," said Wharton, sternly; "but I can tell you beforehand you'll find nothing there."

"Thank you, Mr. Wharton," said Mamie, kindly.

The policeman walked over to Mamie's jacket and, after fumbling for a moment in her pocket, pulled out the bank notes tightly rolled together. He held them up before the astonished gaze of the hands. Wharton pretended to be very much surprised, and, pointing to Mamie, uttered the one word, "Guilty."

Mamie's friends had shrunk away from her, leaving her facing Wharton alone. But it was only for a moment, for Jack Fallon, through one of those strange turns of fortune, which some persons call luck, others fate, and others divine providence, had entered the room carrying a note in his hand. As it was always duty first with Jack he turned to Mr. Wharton and said:

"Here is a note from my employer to you."

"Jack! Jack!" cried Mamie, with glad surprise, running to his side and taking his hand.

"What is it, Mamie? What's wrong?" he replied, looking about him and for the first time noticing fully the strange look of those about him.

"It means that I have been robbed," said Wharton angrily, "and that the stolen money was found in her pocket. It means that Mamie Malloy is a thief."

"You lie!" cried Jack, facing Wharton.

"What!" replied the aroused employer.

"I say you lie," Jack repeated.

"Yes, it is a lie," interrupted Mamie. "I can see it all now. Ainsleigh Wharton, this is your revenge."

"Go on, Mamie," said Jack, "what do you mean?"

"I mean that Ainsleigh Wharton insulted me."

"What's that?" cried Jack.

"And I refused his offer with scorn, and he has done this for revenge."

"This is absurd," Wharton said with a smile, looking about him. "Every one here knows that up to the last moment I assured the officer that you were not the guilty party."

"Some one has done this, and whoever it is will have to answer to me!" cried Jack, looking from Wharton to Bates.

Wharton turned to the officer and said, "Arrest that girl for theft."

Jack hesitated for a moment and then stepped between the girl he loved and the policeman. Throwing up his hands he cried, "Stop!"

"How dare you, a common working fellow, interfere?" said Wharton, furiously. "How dare you speak?"

"I am not going to speak, but I know something that will."

"And what is that?" said Wharton with a sneer.

"The honest arm of a working man."

Before the policeman could interfere Jack had drawn back his right arm and struck Wharton fully and fairly in the face, knocking him down. Mamie sprang to his side and laid a restraining hand on his shoulder.

"Come on, miss," said the officer, leading the way.

Jack followed. Wharton slowly scrambled to his feet and left the room. Bates turned angrily to those about him and said, "Go to work."

CHAPTER V.

MAMIE MALLOY'S home was on the top floor of a Houston street tenement house. The rooms, though small, were clean, and the furnishings showed the handiwork of an economical woman. Years before Mamie had lost her father in a factory accident. Her mother had brought the child up with the earnings of her needlework until the strain on her eyes blinded her. Luckily, Mamie was then old enough to go to work in a cigarette factory, and with what she earned and with what Annie paid Mrs. Malloy for her board and for the board of little Bessie they were able to live comfortably.

On the night of Mamie's arrest, Mrs. Malloy sat in her rocking chair in her room waiting for her return. Bessie was at her feet playing with her rag doll.

"Oh, see, Mrs. Malloy! See my dolly!" said Bessie, holding it up before her. "She has a new dress!"

"You forget, dearie, that auntie cannot see," said Mrs. Malloy sadly.

"Is it dark all the time, auntie?" asked the child, with wonderment in her face.

"Yes, my child, always dark," replied Mrs. Malloy.

"You ain't my real auntie, are you, Mrs. Malloy?"

"No, darling. You got in the habit of calling me auntie when I have been taking care of you while mamma Annie has been at her work in the cigarette factory."

"But I love you just the same as if you were my real auntie," and the child climbed on her knee and kissed her.

"God bless you, Bess!" said the dear old lady, laying her hand on the baby's head. "You will never know what a blessing you have been to me. A little child—no wonder the Master said, 'Of such is the kingdom.'"

"What does that mean, auntie?"

"It means we all must become like children before we can enter Heaven."

"Um—huh—and that's where the angels are, isn't it?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Malloy.

"Do Angels Have Rag Dolls?"

"And do the angels have rag dolls in Heaven?"

Bessie hugged her toy to her childish breast.

"No, I guess not, Bess," said Mrs. Malloy, smiling sweetly.

"Well, Heaven is a nice place, isn't it?" asked the child.

"The nicest place in all the universe."

"Well, I don't see how that can be with no rag dollies there." Again Bessie hugged her doll. "I just love my dollie," kissing its face fondly.

"What is your dollie's name, Bess?"

"And Do the Angels Have Rag Dolls in Heaven?"

"Mrs. Leslie Carter. I heard mamma say she was fine. I wonder why mamma and Mamie don't come. It is very late, isn't it."

"Yes, Bess, very late, and I don't understand you. I am beginning to get worried."

"Auntie, all little girls have a papa, don't they?" said Bessie, forgetting her dollie for a moment in her new thought.

"Yes, my child."

"Well, did you ever see my papa, Auntie?"

"No, Bess. Your mamma has never spoken to me of him, and, of course, I have never spoken to her."

"Well, I asked mamma, and she told me papa had gone away—away—away—away off, and maybe would never come back."

"Well, mamma knows, darling."

Bessie had slipped from the old lady's knees and knelt before them.

"I'll tell you a secret, auntie. Last Christmas Eve I prayed to Santa Claus to send my papa home to me, instead of sending me my dollie. He didn't come, and I was so sorry. I wanted him to come and then take him to mamma and say, 'Look, mamma, here is papa that Santa Claus sent home to us,' and he didn't come at all."

Mother Malloy leaned over and putting her arms around the child kissed her on the hair. This was the picture presented to Mamie, Annie and Jack as they entered the room.

"Here we are, mudderkins. Home at last," said Mamie, walking over and kissing her.

"Mamma! mamma!" cried Bessie, running over and kissing her mother, who hugged her fondly to her breast.

"I am so glad, Mamie. I was worried," said Mrs. Malloy. "What ever made you so late?"

Her Lame Excuse

"Oh, the electricity went wrong on the elevated and delayed us, didn't it, Jack?" said Mamie, as she turned and looked at her sweetheart.

"Oh, yes, certainly. Why, I thought we would never get home?" said Jack.

"How do you do, Mr. Fallon?" said Mrs. Malloy, nodding in the direction of his voice.

"How do you do, Mrs. Malloy; well, I hope?" replied Jack, walking over and taking her hand.

She had arisen and standing beside him replied: "As well as possible, thank you. Come, Bess, and lead auntie to her room," she continued. "I have something for you."

Bessie ran over and took the old lady by the hand, leading her to the door.

"Oh, what is it, auntie?" cried Bessie.

"You will have to wait and see," said she to the child, and then turning to the young people she continued: "I'll leave you young people alone for a while."

"All right, mother," said Mamie.

When Mrs. Malloy and Mamie left the room Mamie turned to Jack and said: "I am glad that mother does not know. Oh, how horrible it was to stay in that awful cell, and to think, Jack, I should have been there yet but for you going on my bail. I want to thank you for it."

Jack had followed Mamie, and the policeman to the station house. As soon as the charge had been entered on the blotter, Jack had gone on Mamie's bond, giving as a bond the little home he had purchased on Long Island.

"Don't talk like that, Mamie," said Jack. "Why should you thank me? It was just as much your house as mine. That's the first good turn our little home has done for us."

"It's not mine yet, Jack," replied Mamie, coyly.

"But it will be as soon as we are married, little girl, and that won't be long if, after I have asked your mother, you will consent to be married right away."

Nice of Sergeant McCool

Turning to Annie, Mamie said: "And, Annie, dear old girl, you would insist upon going into the cell with me. It was so nice of Sergeant McCool in consenting to it."

"I knew from the very first he would do it," laughed Jack.

"Why?" asked Mamie.

"You were a woman in distress and he was an Irishman."

"Mamie," said Annie, "may Bess stay in this room a little while tonight? I must go on an errand."

"Certainly, Mamie, let her stay here all night if you wish."

"No, thank you, dear; I will take her up to my room. She always wants me to hear her prayer, and I could not bear to sleep without her from my side. I'll hurry right back."

"Wait and I will go with you," said Jack.

"Yes, Jack, do. I was just going to suggest it," said Mamie, walking over and kissing him.

"No, don't bother, Mr. Fallon," said Annie.

"It's no bother at all," replied Jack, as he closed the door.

Scarcely had their footsteps died away on the stair when a racket was heard outside of Mamie's door.

"Aw, wait, I tell you," the voice was heard to say.

"Wait nuttins," came the reply in feminine tone. "Do youse take me fer a chump?"

"Come in," cried Mamie.

Katie and Dick entered. Katie was giggling and Dick had a black eye.

"Taint rite, I tell yer, Katie, en nuttin can make it rite," said Dick.

"Yes, yes, dere iss sumpin's kin make it rite, and dat sumpin iss Alderman Mc Fadden. Youse iss tied, bound and cinched ter me, ter Katie Kerrigan by promise of marriage, en youse will keep dat promise er day'l be trouble in de Ate Ward," said Katie, seizing him by the shoulder.

"Now, then, Dickie and Katie," said Mamie laughingly. "What's all this about? It was only today that you told me, Katie, that you and Dickie were engaged."

"Certainly, certainly," replied Katie, triumphantly.

"Dere, Dickie Malone; dere iss one of me witnesses! False, fair, deceptionad lover of mine—I hass yer cinched."

"Why Dickie, why, is it possible that you want to break your engagement the same day it was made?" asked Mamie.

"Possible? No, it's fack. Break me engagement? Wy, certainly! Didn't she break me jaw?" replied Dick.

"Well, wassent you trainin' ta meet Nelson?" asked Katie.

"Yess, I wass trainin' to meet de champeen 'n' match you again him for ten thousand dollars, en youse'll win in a walk," replied Dick quickly.

Katie Waxes Petulant

"Yes, en Katie's goin' ta win diss bout in a walk, too. Youse can dig into my girlish heart en turn et up en down en twist it rite in de core, and give me de quick en dirty shake—en don't you tink it. Ise hain't no come on from de tall grass, not on your life, en whats Ise says goes en goes hard," replied Katie, shaking him furiously.

Dick looked helpless at Mamie, trying to free himself from the angry girl.

"En do youse expect me to live wid a girl what kin slug me in de jaw en knock me out en talk like dat all in de same day? Not while de riffer is still running on de East Soide."

"Aw! G'wan, youse, en jump in de riffer," cried Katie. "En it'll kill all de fishes. I don't care nuttin' 'bout youse committin' sue-en-side, but no udder goil is goin' ta git youse, not while me rite fist iss hangin' on to me arm—don't you fa-git-id!"

Mamie could scarcely keep from laughing; finally she gasped:

"There, there, let him go if he wants to, no lady ever insists upon an engagement being kept if the gentleman is obdurate."

"Ob-drate, I don't kno' nuttin' 'bout dat ob'drate, but if Dickie Malone tries to throw me down he'll be dett, dats watt," replied Katie.

"Wait, wait a minute, en maybe wese kin effeck a compermise," cried Dick.

Katie looked mystified. The question of submitting any important matter to a board of arbitration and calling the result a compromise was something she could not understand.

"Effeck a what," she cried. "No, youse don't! Youse can't spring none o' dem new-fangled t'ings on Katie, I'm too wise for dat, Mr. Cute. Try dat on some one else, but not on Katie."

"You don't understand, Katie," said Mamie, sympathetically. "Dickie means by compromise he will pay so much for his release."

"Oh, iss dat it? He wants ta pay for his release. Well, den, it'll cost him his life," replied Katie.

"Hully gee, haint she a terror?" cried Dick, throwing up his hands.

Aw, Be Reasonable

"I iss wen youse try ta giff me de double and split; but if youse'll be a man an' keep your word wit me I'll do youse rite, en I'm gonna be a money maker, I iss. One o' dem artists wants me now ta pose fer a pieder ta be called de 'Princess en de Pauper.'"

"En wott iss youse goin' to be?" cried Dick in astonishment.

"Be princess, of course," said Katie proudly.

"Day haint no usen talkin', dis iss tough luck," said Dick in disgust.

"Tuff luck?" cried Katie. "Why, boy, youse iss de luckiest mug on earth. I'd knock you into a cocked hat an hour ago, 'ceptin' for one tin."

"En what is dat?" asked Dick.

"I cuddent help tinkin dat some day you'd be the father of me children," said Katie.

Dick gave one look of terror at the girl whom he had asked to be his wife. Her answer and her looks were too much for him.

"Lemme out of dis," he cried, bolting wildly to the door.

"No, youse don't, Dickie Malone. I'm wid youse to de finish," she cried, following him.

Their footsteps could be heard clattering down the stairway, and the front door was heard to slam violently. Mamie laughed heartily at the episode.

She had walked over to the table and was picking up a paper when she heard her mother cry: "Mamie! Oh, Mamie!"

"Yes, mother," she replied, walking toward the door, which Mrs. Malloy had opened.

"Can you come to my room for a moment?" said the blind woman.

"Yes, mother; Jack and Annie are out."

"I want you to see what I have done for Bessie."

"All right, mother," said Mamie, slipping her arm around her waist and closing the door.

CHAPTER VI.

AINSLEIGH WHARTON was a man who could never forgive any one who had deeply offended him. He was a man of small mind, who took small revenges. When Mamie refused to accept his offer, he determined to disgrace the girl, and if possible get her completely in his power. To assist him in his trickery he called in Bates, his tool. After Mamie's release he and Bates went to her home after Annie had been called out by her mother. Their knocks on the door had not been answered and they did not stand on ceremony.

"Are you sure this is the place, Bates?" Wharton said, looking about him.

"Yes, Mr. Wharton. I have followed all your working people home at various times, sir. It was my duty as your inspector, Mr. Wharton."

Bates delighted to call himself an inspector. He really was a spy.

"Very good, Bates. You say the mother is blind?"

"Very good. Now, Bates, you may go, but wait outside for me at the nearest corner of the street."

"Yes, Mr. Wharton."

"And Bates!"

"Yes, Mr. Wharton."

"I may ask this girl to marry me. If I do, and she consents, do you know of some trusty fellow who could pretend to be a minister, who would marry us?"

This was the first time that Wharton had spoken openly of his trickery. Both men had fully understood their schemes, but, like all conspirators, had chosen to mask them.

During the conversation Bates had been gliding about the room peering into books and drawers.

Resinol

cured chapped, bleeding hands

NEW York, N. Y., Nov. 23, 1912.—"My face and hands were chapped to such an extent that the cracks bled, and the burning was awful when I washed my face; it brought tears to my eyes. Of course my face and hands were a sight, and felt like a rasp. I tried several applications without results, but three applications of Resinol relieved me. I put Resinol Ointment all over my face and hands and arms, and kept it on all day, washed it off in the evening with Resinol Soap and put a little Ointment on, then put on full dress in the morning again. I noticed the benefit from Resinol when I washed the first time after using it. I was soon completely cured." (Signed) Miss H. de Martino, 650 E. 189th Street.

SCALY-LIKE RASH ON BABY'S LEGS

And Neck. Coming Out on Arms. Became Raw Sores. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Gave Instant Relief and Completely Cured.

122 Balch St., Beverly, Mass.:—"When my baby was but six weeks old she broke out on her legs and neck with a dry, scaly-like rash. I soon noticed it seemed to be spreading together on her neck and was coming out on her arms. She was very fussy and needed constant attention. She could only sleep about half an hour at a time either day or night. In about three days it had become raw sores. It turned into a running sore on her neck and was fast becoming so on her arms.

"I sent for some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed her with the Cuticura Soap and applied the Ointment as soon as I got them and they seemed to afford instant relief. She went right to sleep and slept for three hours, the first time for over two weeks. After two or three applications of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I noticed a decided change. I continued the treatment and she was entirely cured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured her." (Signed) Mrs. C. B. Giles, Apr. 19, 1912.

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery because they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

MELLEN TUNNEL PROMISE FOR B. & M. LEASE

Great public interest was manifested today in the latest scheme of the New Haven Railroad to get possession of the Boston & Maine.

The bait to the public is in the form of a promise to build a $50,000,000 tunnel, extending from Everett to the Back Bay station, by way of the South Station, and connecting the New Haven and Boston & Maine Railroads.

This tunnel would be built in three years and the railroad electrified, IF—

As is suggested by Vice-President Byrnes, the New Haven is given a twenty-five year lease of the Boston & Maine.

Or, IF, as proposed by Governor Foss, the New Haven takes a fifty-year lease of the Boston & Maine.

But, so far as the public has been able to express itself on the proposal of handling the Boston & Maine over to the New Haven, there is a strong protest against it.

The Real Question.

The proposal of the New Haven seems to make it appear that the great question to be decided is whether there shall be a lease for twenty-five or fifty years of the Boston & Maine to the New Haven, whereas the real question to be decided is whether there shall be a lease at all.

The proposed tunnel would make Boston a way station to points West and South on a through transportation line from Canada. A connection with the Boston & Albany tracks in Everett would enable steamship passengers to step from the ship to through trains for New York or Chicago. The tunnel would have four tracks.

Regarding the lease conditions made by Governor Foss, Vice-President Byrnes of the New Haven said:

What Byrnes Says.

The New Haven road has submitted several plans for a closer union with the Boston & Maine. This is one of the latest and best propositions, but it may not go through. It would be impossible to finance such a tremendous undertaking unless the New Haven road was assured it might not lose control of the Boston & Maine at any moment.

Twenty-five years would be sufficient. If the New Haven had a twenty-five-year lease it could go ahead with the tunnel, finish it in three years and electrify both railroads. It would be absolutely necessary to electrify. After getting the improved service the public would never consent to a separation of the New Haven and the Boston & Maine. They would become one great system, as they ought to be.

STATE HOUSE NOTES

Senator William A. Bellamy of Taunton today introduced two bills affecting the New York, New Haven & Hartford. One requires the road to maintain a flagman at White Crossing, Middleboro avenue, Taunton, day and night. The other provides that the New Haven shall not charge a higher fare between Taunton and Attleboro than that in force December 31, 1912.

Bills to regulate the manufacture and sale of matches and to make it unlawful to set bonfires in certain places were filed by Senator Harry N. Stearns of Cambridge, on petition of the Massachusetts State Fire Prevention Association.

The following other petitions for legislation were filed:

By Representative John J. Lyden of Boston, for an industrial home for vagrants.

By John R. Wallace, that the Bay State Street Railway Company be required to operate express cars between Boston and all points not more than twelve miles distant; that records of the district police relative to injuries to employes in factories shall be open to inspection; that the charge for a single telephone communication between Boston and any point not more than twelve miles distant shall not exceed five cents.

By Arthur Bartelle, to authorize the Commonwealth to bridge Lake Quinsigamond.

By Representative John A. Anderson, Boston, to permit playing baseball on the Lord's Day for charity; that dealers in coal be required to give advance notice of a rise in price.

By George C. Dempsey, that the license question shall be put on the ballot only on petition.

By Edward H. Pinkham, that the vote on the license question be taken on the day of the State election.

By Representative P. H. Carr of Boston, that the North Station-Sullivan square elevated structure be replaced by a subway.

ROBIN SENTENCE A YEAR IN PRISON

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Joseph G. Robin, the skyrocket financier, who has been in the Tombs for many months awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty to the charge of larceny of $27,000 from the Washington Savings Bank, today was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary. Robin had been a valuable witness for the State in the trial of Charles H. Hyde, and it was expected he would be rewarded.

URGES CHANGE IN SCHOOL FACTORY LAW

Senator Samuel Ross of New Bedford today filed a bill in the Senate to strengthen the law prohibiting the employment of children under fourteen years of age in factories. The bill provides that certificates authorizing the employment of such minors in factories shall only be issued by superintendents of schools or deputy superintendents. At present such certificates are issued by local school boards.

'FAMILIARITY FATAL' TO OFFICE-HOLDERS'

"Politicians should not grow too familiar with their positions. Familiarity often breeds contempt or neglect of office," said Rev. Charles E. Park of the First Church, in his noon address in King's Chapel today. "So many people have not the sense of proportion," said the preacher. "They do not keep the trivial things trivial, or the important things important. Every once in a while we have to face the disgrace of a public servant who has become too familiar with his office in the wrong way."

SENATOR FIGHT GOES OVER TO MONDAY

of the 22 ballots Weeks has gained 15 votes and McCall 11.

The adjournment was taken today on the motion of Representative Putnam of Westfield. The reason given was that the men in the western part of the State wanted time to get home by tonight.

Nothing manifested itself at today's caucus that indicated an early settlement of the deadlock. Between today and Monday the candidates and their friends will exercise their greatest ingenuity to get hold of the political plum that seems to rest pretty high on the tree just now.

"Stand Pat" the Watchword.

Today's caucus was called to order by President Greenwood of the Senate at 10:40. It had been preceded by a good-natured colloquy in which supporters of Weeks, McCall and Guild participated. The most popular man in the State House seemed to be "Pat," whose first name is "Stand."

"We're going to stick to Weeks," asserted his supporters.

"We're glued to McCall," cried his backers.

"Look out for Guild," suggested the friends of the Russian Ambassador.

Representative Blanchard of Somerville moved that they proceed to take the eighteenth ballot, or the first one today.

The eighteenth ballot resulted as follows:

Weeks	73
McCall	66
Guild	11
Draper	3
Lawrence	2

This made no change in the two leading standing from the seventeenth ballot yesterday. Guild gained three, Draper held one and Lawrence lost one.

McCall Regains Lead.

On the nineteenth ballot Congressman McCall regained the lead which he lost in the ninth ballot yesterday. This was helped along by another switch on the part of the Lowell delegation of four. They had originally been for McCall, changed to Weeks and then went back to McCall.

McCall today sent the following telegram to his supporters:

"I thank you for your loyal support. Stand fast today and we will win."

While there was no change in the totals of the leaders in the twentieth ballot there was some shifting of votes. Senator Bellamy of Taunton, who voted for Guild in the nineteenth ballot, changed to Weeks; Representative Curtin of Brookline, who had been with Weeks, forsook him for Guild and Representative Hersey of Hingham, who had voted for Weeks changed to McCall.

McCall lost one on the twenty-first ballot and Weeks edged up a peg. The vote was: McCall, 73; Weeks, 71; Guild, 9; Draper, 2; Lawrence, 2; Curtin went from Guild to Weeks, Stone from McCall to Guild, and Nason, who had not voted previously, cast his ballot for Guild.

Representative Felker of Avon flopped from Weeks to Guild on the eighteenth ballot. Senator Church of Danvers, who did not vote on the seventeenth ballot, voted for Weeks, thus keeping the leader in the same place he was yesterday at the close of the caucus.

MAYOR DECLARES HIS SENATORIAL BATTLE COST HIM NOTHING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The secretary of the Senate has received from Mayor Fitzgerald and Congressman McCall statements of the expenditures in connection with their campaigns for Senator from Massachusetts. In a sworn statement the Mayor puts his expenditures down as "Nothing." Mr. McCall's expenditures, including money spent in his behalf by Samuel L. Powers and Congressman Wilder, amounted to $928.52, up to January 7.

That Mr. McCall and the Mayor acted almost simultaneously in mailing their accounts is shown by the fact that the envelope inclosing the Mayor's statement bears the postoffice registry number "40317," while Mr. McCall's bears the number "40321."

Mr. McCall's account shows that he gave the Republican State Committee $200 on October 7 last and $200 on November 2. These sums, Mr. McCall states, were given to be used as the committee chose, but first there be any doubt about the matter he submits them with his own account.

On January 7, according to Mr. McCall's statement, Samuel L. Powers gave to Alfred S. Hall, chairman of a voluntary committee, $100 to be spent in electing Mr. McCall to the Senate. Mr. McCall, himself, gave Mr. Hall $200 on December 6 and another $200 on January 7.

Mr. McCall says he has been informed that George L. Drury, Congressman Wilder's secretary, worked for him, McCall, in Mr. Gardner's district from November 20 until January 7, and that during that period he drew from Mr. Wilder his regular salary, which amounted to $154, and was given $314.09 for expenses.

MINISTER OBJECTS TO THE CANDIDACY OF CONGRESSMAN WEEKS

The Rev. William M. Macnair of Cambridge, moderator of the Boston ministers' meeting (Congregational) jumped into the Senatorial fight today, declaring that the ministers did not want John W. Weeks for United States Senator from Massachusetts.

Representative Fred P. Greenwood of Everett received the following letter from Mr. Macnair:

Mr. Macnair's Letter.

Dear Mr. Greenwood:

Here is a little fact about Mr. Weeks which, to my mind at least, shows that he is not the man to be sent to the Senate. You may remember that a year ago or so the Congregational ministers of Boston appointed a committee to correspond with Senator Crane and ask him why he voted for Mr. Lorimer. No criticism or censure was directed against Mr. Crane, but we all had an honest desire to give him every chance and find out the reasons for his vote.

Mr. Weeks, without any excuse whatever, wrote from Washington to Mr. Samuel B. Capen, one of our influential laymen, and in so many words, asked him to step in and draw the ministers off this subject. He supposed, probably, that Mr. Capen would do so and never mention the letter from Washington.

But instead of that he turned over the letter to the committee and it was read in open meeting. As a result, we are wondering about Mr. Weeks' view concerning the relations of a Senator to his constituents.

He may suppose that constituents have no business to ask questions about a man's public acts, or he must think that ministers have no right to concern themselves with questions about bribery and corruption, or else he must believe that Congressional ministers need to be muzzled at the secret suggestions of meddlesome Congressmen. In any case, we do not think Mr. Weeks ought to represent us.

Heartily yours,

WILLIAM M. MACNAIR.

At the top of the letter are printed the words:

ARE WEEKS AND M'CALL PROGRESSIVES?

M'CALL SAID:

I may damn the referendum with faint praise by saying that where each is bad the referendum is not so bad as the initiative. However, as a settled policy in the making of ordinary statutes is indefensible.

What we need in the way of reform is not a system which will make the passage of laws easier, but one which will make their passage more difficult, except when they repeal existing statutes.

What our friends the Progressive suggest is that every official elected by the people shall assume office with a rope tied round his neck, so that at any moment he might be strung up in a sort of political execution. —New York World, February 25, 1912.

WEEKS SAID:

"Will it (the tariff) be revision upward or downward" Weeks was asked.

"It will be revision downward. There will be a decrease in the duties on some things, and an increase on others. There will be increases on some luxuries."

"Such as what?"

"Well, take yachts, for instance. There will be a duty of 25 per cent. on yachts. I believe in such a duty; in fact, I do not know but what I suggested it. I had a list prepared of yachts in actual use in the United States that were purchased abroad. Their value aggregated $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. If these yachts had been built in this country it would have furnished business for our shipyards and employment for our men. Now, a duty of 25 per cent. on yachts would offset a great many small reductions. — Boston Transcript, July 8, 1909.

(A duty on yachts made in Europe will certainly help some. So many poor men, who now carry dinner pails, will feel that a great burden has been lifted from them!

Who said Massachusetts has not got a real humorist?)—Comment by the AMERICAN at that time.

SUBURBAN STARS IN BIG MATCHES ON THE ALLEYS

The fight for first position in the suburban Bowling League starts tonight and from all accounts should be an interesting one. Cambridge and Noddle are now tied for that berth but the close standing of several of the other teams may mean a new leader after the results of tonight's matches are known.

The wonderful improvement shown by several of the teams in the past few weeks has placed the Suburban League a close second to the City League, which is considered the strongest organization in the State.

When the league season started late in October the directors dropped several of the teams outside the city limits, reducing the membership from a twelve to a ten-team league.

"Fans" Indorse Plan.

The plan was indorsed by the "fans," but the teams got away to a poor start and interest gradually decreased. Now that the race is developing into a close fight once more the interest is being renewed.

The new teams entered in the league this season, East Boston and Noddle, have made a very creditable showing. The latter is now tied for first place and moreover, although in sixth position, is but seven points behind the leaders.

The teams were hard hit this season by the loss of star men. Bert Bounds, Fitzgerald, Archie Walsh and Eldridge dropped from the ranks of Chelsea, leaving that team with but one regular man, Timmy Burns. Timmy has done very little bowling this season so that the team is practically a new one entirely. Walsh, being a resident of East Boston, naturally was given a place on the East Boston team, and Eldridge shifted to the Noddle team. However, this team was considerably strengthened by the addition of Hitchings, who has an average of 93.

Graves and Gregg Graduate.

The Everett team was forced to give up Frank Graves and Billy Gregg by graduation to the City League. Graves and Gregg are "100" men and would fit in very well in the Everett lineup just now. Without them two men, however, Everett has been able to cling to the leaders.

Despite the fact that Malden has an exceptionally good lineup, still they could use "Ike" Allen and Bean, both of whom did well among the individual rollers last season. Square has been greatly strengthened while the other three teams, Broadway, Cambridge and Prospect, remain about on the same basis.

Noddle has the best chance of the three leaders to climb to the front tonight. The East Boston boys will be stacked against Prospect on their home alleys and a comparison of averages would indicate that they will not have to extend themselves to any great decree in order to win. Likewise, Cambridge has a good opportunity to retain its position as they too will meet an easy team in Broadway on their home alleys.

Chelsea Rules a Favorite.

The best match of the night will be rolled at Malden where Timmy Burns and his fellers will be the attraction. Indications point to a win for Chelsea, but Malden has the advantage of being on its home alleys and should make the going pretty even.

Everett will try to better its position at the expense of the Auditorium rollers but there is little telling what he latter will do.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THE foolish little Winter game of picking the winners and losers of the next pennant race still goes merrily on. Milan, the Washington outsider, is quoted as saying the Red Sox will not win the flag next year because "they will not be able to stand the pace."

This kind of talk is simply puerile. What sense is there in picking out a team that has already demonstrated that they are well able to "stand the pace" and then say they can't stand it? If ever a team made that kind of a demonstration it was the Red Sox last season. They took the lead in the middle of the year and held it to the end. They beat their best in face of the fact that time after time the Athletics and Washingtons challenged them.

IF the Red Sox did this once, why cannot they do it again? If the players were veterans there would be some sense in Milan's prediction. But they are all young men as ball players go and there is no good reason to believe they will not next season.

THE team that wins the pennant next year will be the team among the best teams that has the luck—the "breaks," as they say in baseball. Luck or "breaks," or whatever term you use, is all of 25 per cent. of baseball. We in Boston have confidence in the ability of the Red Sox to play good enough baseball to win the pennant, but unless the "breaks" come along with the ability the Red Sox will not win the pennant.

There are hundreds of ways that "breaks" may occur in a game. If the home team has the bases full in the ninth and needs two runs to win and the batter hits a terrific liner directly in the hands of an opposing infielder, that is a "break" in favor of the visiting team. If a ball hit to the outfield takes a sudden bounce over the outfielder's head, that is a "break." If the shortstop runs to cover second on a steal and the batter pushes the ball where the shortstop would have been standing, that is also a "break." One "break" in a game is likely to win or lose it.

FROM now until the race starts in April is the season of the year to dream of pennant winners. It is absolutely the dullest period for the managers. They can all see a chance of improving the position of their clubs. It is the time for "dreams" and "dope." The dreams of the tail-end teams dream of finishing in the first division. The first division team leaders dream of winning the pennant. Let us not disturb these dreams. Lord knows the managers have a hard time of it from the time the pistol cracks sending the clubs on their journey until the race ends.

THEY say Frank Leroy Chance is to receive $120,000 for directing the destinies of the New York American League baseball club for a period of three years. I very much doubt it. In the first place, both Chance and Frank Farrell, his new employer, have refused to name the price the new manager of the Highlanders is to receive for his work. If they won't tell what's the use of guessing? But the Chicago reporters have guessed and they base their figures on the idea that Chance will get $25,000 a year for managing the team and 5 per cent. of the profits of the club. They arbitrarily place his share of the profits at $15,000 a year, bringing the yearly total to $40,000.

IT is quite likely that the deal between Farrell and Chance makes the Peerless Leader the highest priced baseball man in the world. But the writer believes this $40,000 business is altogether too much. It is true it was reported that Chance said he would not sign a contract unless he received the highest salary paid a manager and also a per cent. of the profits. He is reported to have also said lots of other things as to what he would do and what he would not do. But it has been pretty well proven that he didn't say any of these things at all.

If the truth of the matter is ever told it would not be surprising to find that Chance is receiving something like a flat salary of $20,000 a year, or $60,000 for three years, which is some different from $120,000 for three years.

A CLEVELAND newspaperman claims that the big prices paid for star players in recent seasons are all fictitious. He says he has documentary evidence that the huge sums named as the price of Russell, Marquard and O'Toole never happened—that the amount of cash exchanged was relatively small, and that the big sums were made up by putting an inflated value on the secret papers figuring in the deals.

He says that the real money for O'Toole was just $5,500; for Marquard, $5,000; for Russell, $2,500; for Schalk, $3,500, and for Cornelius, $2,000. Ed Bang—that's the wicked writer—is evidently an inconoclast—or else he is just the reverse—an idol worshiper. If Ed tells it right, the $10,000 cash that was twice paid in the long-ago for Clarkson and Kelly—was the highwater mark, and has never been approached.

TRAVIS IS BEATEN.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 10.—Walter J. Travis, Garden City, was eliminated as a championship aspirant in yesterday's second match play of the Pinehurst fourth annual midwinter golf tournament. Robert Hunter of Wellburn defeated Travis, 2 up and 1 to play.

TUOHEY OFFERS GOTCH $15,000 PURSE FOR GO

An offer of $15,000 to meet the winner of the Lurich-Lemle wrestling bout, which will be held in Mechanics building next Tuesday evening, has been made to Frank Gotch, the heavyweight champion of the world, by George V. Tuohey, the local wrestling promoter.

Whether or not Gotch will accept this offer is not yet known. He has been flooded with offers, and, according to his manager, Emil Klauk, the pressure is becoming so great that he will be forced out of retirement very soon. Gotch, through his manager, has expressed a desire to meet Lurich many times.

If Gotch should agree to leave his cave it is understood that Boston "fans" will get the first chance to see him on the mat. Tuohey has also made a tempting offer to Zbyszko, the "Mighty Pole," to meet the winner of the Lurich-Lemle match, but the latter is hesitating about accepting it. Lurich has defeated Zbyszko twice, at Budapest in October, 1910, and also at Krakow, Galesia, and the Polish star does not seem very anxious to tackle the big Russian grappler again.

Lurich and Dr. Roller, the physician-athlete, will leave Chicago Sunday morning and will arrive here the following morning, where they will finish their training in preparation for their respective matches.

Karl Lemle, who will meet Lurich in the main bout, will come direct from New York and will arrive in this city about the same time as his opponent, Vincent, the Cuban Giant, who meets Doctor Roller in the semi-final bout, will come direct from Detroit.

PAUL PILGRIM, erstwhile Olympic champion [illegible] captain of the New York Athletic Club for next year, has mapped out a new reform system that will surprise athletic followers throughout the country. He has issued a statement that members of the track team will not be allowed to compete in a set of games otherwise than those conducted by the leading clubs in New York.

Mr. Pilgrim gives a very strong reason for his course of action in tabooing all the small club and association games. He claims that these contests furnish the athletes who compete in them the greatest chance of becoming tainted with professionalism [illegible]

Helen Exchanges One of Her Xmas Gifts, but Has Reason to Regret It

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"P... on the hall table," suggested Warren. "It's dark out there, and nobody'll notice it."

"And have everyone see it the first thing they come in?" exclaimed Helen. "Why, it ... would cheapen the whole apartment."

Warren shrugged his shoulders, "Chuck it out of sight, then. I'm not keen on having it around."

"Oh, but dear, we MUST have it out somewhere. She'll be sure to look for it when she comes."

"What if she does? Anybody who didn't have any more sense than to send a thing like that ..."

... to send something showy ... She ought to have known ... the thing and ... it GOOD," frowning at Mrs. Osborne's gaudy Christmas present, which still rankled in her mind.

It was an ... table lamp with a ... shade ... red and green glass ... the base was a ... figure of a woman with ... hair, holding the lamp with an upraised arm. It was a hideous example of a hideous type. And to Helen, whose home was f... charmingly simple things ... mostly antiques, the gaudy decorations of this lamp ... a shriek at her.

Even Warren had admitted that it was pretty bad. And when ... the ... Mrs. Osborne ... more.

"I have it ..." Warren ... tomorrow ... chuck it away somewhere and say ...

her first question ... lamp.

... "I know who got it," persisted Mrs. Stevens, with the familiarity of a long friendship. "Mrs. Osborne!"

Helen flushed. "How did you know?"

"Oh, it looks just like her. She only sent me a card; you know we haven't been very friendly since Mrs. Dawson's tea. But what ARE you going to do with that?"

"We're going to say that Pussy Purrmew knocked it off and broke it," laughingly, "and then stow it away in the trunk room."

Mrs. Stevens' Suggestion

"Why not exchange it?" demanded Mrs. ... I'm sure she got it at ... that's where she always trades. Take it back there and exchange it for something decent."

"Oh, could I do THAT?"

"Why, of course you can. That's what everybody's doing this week—returning the Christmas presents they don't want. Wrap it up now and ..."

... $7.98 ...

"... the best way," declared Mrs. Stevens. "Have you written her acknowledging the lamp yet?"

"No. I've been putting it off. I couldn't say it was 'lovely' or 'charming,' and I didn't know what to write."

"Let me write it for you. I'll ... to!" laughingly. "I'll thank her for the lamp in one paragraph and tell her Pussy Purrmew broke it in the next."

And when, a little later, they stopped again in front of Helen's apartment, Mrs. Stevens came in with her and hurriedly wrote off the note.

... reading it aloud.

"Dear Mrs. Osborne—I wish to thank you for your charming gift. It was very thoughtful and kind of you, and we both appreciate it."

But I hardly know how to tell you ...

Mrs. Osborne's Reply

It was about a week later when Helen ...

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"T... printed in the papers lately, George," observed the Manicure Lady, "about whether a man is at his best when he is a meat eater or a vegetarian. Some of the biggest writers and thinkers in the country thinks that a man can't be a good all around thinker and man without eating a little meat, and other people who think they know just as much say that the eating of beef and other meats kind of clogs the intellect."

"Maybe it does," said the Head Barber, "but I was looking over a lot of tenement houses on the way down town this morning, and it seems to me that a lot of the pinched looking faces I seen belonged to people that would be mighty willing to have their intellects clogged and dull if they could have even half of one ... steak."

"Wilfred thinks the same as the ... said the Manicure Lady ... the poor boy is a little prejudiced ... a vegetarian himself and he went and ... He is that easy ... for the last few weeks he has been eating ... and oats for his breakfast ... and ... for his lunch, and sunflower seed for his dinner."

"Sunflower seed!" exclaimed the Head Barber.

... said the Manicure Lady ... sunflower seed was the greatest ... bird ... humming bird always ... sunflower seed for part of its diet ...

Well, ... Wilfred had to ... for the ... and he sent fifty cents in ...

"THE WHIP"

An Exciting Tale of Love and Adventure That Grips from Start to Finish

The story of the play of the same name now being produced in New York.

... the play.

By BERTRAND BABCOCK.

PART I.

NOW in the blackness of the tunnel he crept along the foot-plate which ran just below the side doors and which had given opportunity for many a crime.

While the passengers were absolutely ... of his ... progress past ... he crept along the train, clinging and swaying. In this fashion he passed ... the door of the compartment in which ... Verner Haslam was thinking ... moment and lament... weakly that he had been ... a faith whose issue he could ...

... the ... master ... Sartoris passed ... shoulders of the ... were drawn up into a shrug and ... But to his conscious mind ... came a warning.

Sartoris ... a crack, was ... of an athlete and ... on the footplate gave him no ... he had a constant ... to the swaying and the exact ... it was necessary to impart to his own body.

Sartoris at Work

Now he stood at the very end of the ... which was on the carriage next ... box. Soon he had passed to the end of the horse box. Quickly he raised ... and swung it in a circle for a ...

He wanted to hurl it in such a way that the flame would surely be extinguished, as he wanted no warning to be given to the train behind which was to complete his project.

He realized that if he merely dropped the lantern to the line, there was a bare possibility that it would continue to burn.

... the horse box and ...

... The Whip would not run. The race ... He would be saved from ... Brancaster would be ... and the marriage of Lady Diana and Brancaster put far off.

Quietly he slipped along the foot plate ... regained his own carriage and ... without his absence having been ...

... the path of the first ... should come along near Mansfield Junction.

Saving The Whip

... and the sounds of the rapid approach through the tunnel of the down express came very plainly through the darkness, just as a motor containing two men and Mrs. Beamish dashed around a bend ... near the horse box, and at one side of the line.

Mrs. Beamish and her two escorts ... at ... across the line and pointed upon the door of the horse box as the train in the tunnel moved nearer and nearer.

Finally Harry put his head out of the window, and the frenzied voice of Mrs. Beamish ...

... or you, you're cut off, and The Whip and you'll be killed!" she shouted above the roar of the oncoming train.

Harry cast one glance behind him, saw the rushing express and then threw down the sidedoor of the horse box.

The Whip was led across the line and to safety under the very glare of the ... light of the express. ... engine of the express ploughed ... left by Harry and The Whip ... was derailed while the engine driver ... badly hurt to the ground.

The light impediment of the horse box served to derail several of the carriages behind which had been traveling at high speed, and a number of passengers were hurled out, or thrown violently against partitions and other immovable objects within the train.

Amid escaping steam and a fire, which had started among the wreckage, the work of succor was begun.

Among those who labored none worked with greater courage than the Rev. Verner Haslam. His train had been stopped after the crash, and had backed down to ... It was he who crawled among the splintered burning mass on the line to ... many of the children who had ... express.

CHAPTER XIX.

Tom Lambert Has His Little Hour of Triumph

ON the day after the wreck and the day before the great race The Whip made her triumphal entry to Newmarket. The march toward what ... the Beverley stables felt to be victory ... the day when the racer ... racing men, tipsters ... the yard of the ... Hotel with several policemen ... the crowd at a safe distance from ... of Beverley.

After Lady Diana had greeted the horse upon which so much of her happiness depended and the animal had been led into the box in which all of the Beverley ... had been started ... Tom Lambert and Mrs. Beamish were alone in the great yard of the old inn.

Lady Diana had exclaimed before she went into the hostelry that The Whip would surely march to victory on the following day and now that they were alone the trainer turned savagely upon the humbled and contrite Mrs. Beamish.

"And if it isn't victory," snorted Lambert to Mrs. Beamish, "it will be your fault, Mrs. Beamish."

"Mine!" she exclaimed.

"Yes. Do you think it did our crack any good to gallop her over railroad lines and sleepers?"

"There was no time to put down a Brussels carpet," she responded in her voice of ... "did you want me to leave her in the box?"

"I did not want you to leave me in the ... box," said the trainer with dignity.

"In the wax works?" she countered. "Your own fault. Why did you go there?"

Myrtle's Troubles

"For an evening's pleasure," he said ...

"Well, you got it, didn't you?" said this woman of torments. "Why should you be ashamed of it and hide?"

"Because you've a suspicious mind," he said.

"Because you've a guilty one," she shot back at him.

The ... gave him an idea.

"Stop that, Betty," he said sternly ... isn't a thing for joking."

Then he beckoned Harry to him.

"Harry, my lad," he said, "if you can, just speak up what you've got to say."

The boy could and did at once.

"I want to thank you, ma'am," he said vigorously, "for what you did last night for saving my life. If it hadn't been for you my sister would have been left ...

NOTED WOMEN TO AID GARMENT STRIKE CAUSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes and other influential women who have been taking an active interest in the strike of the women and girls in the men's garment-making trade, announced today that they would enlist their friends to aid the strikers who are struggling for the betterment of living conditions and to uplift the womanhood of the thousands of girls and women employed in the trade. Besides these women there are on the firing line today the ablest women organizers and leaders of such movements in the world.

Personally directing the girls in their struggle for a wage that will give them a living pittance are Leonora O'Reilly, vice-president of the Women's Trade Union League; Gertrude Barnum, organizer of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union; Rose Schneiderman of the executive committee of the Women's Trade League; Josephine Casey, and Violet Pike, also organizers.

Miss Barnum said today:

Others to Strike.

"The shirtwaist and skirt makers will strike early next week. This will add approximately 30,000 (a large majority of whom are girls), to the great army of strikers in the garment making industry.

"The object of the strike is to secure an improvement in the wages and striking conditions and to bring up the lower levels of the trade to the highest plane possible. I want to emphasize the fact that what we are asking for these girls will be of benefit to a large degree to the better class of manufacturers in the industry.

"Five dollars a week is the average wage of the women and girls who are striking. Food and shelter, it has been found, cost at the minimum $5.50 a week. This does not include carfare, the result being that hundreds of these girls walk forty and fifty blocks to and from their work. They cannot afford the ten cents a day carfare.

"When the worker is the mother of children she cannot attempt to support them on what she earns, so sends them to institutions and the State supports them. Though many of the workers earn $10 a week, while busy they work only six months in the year. Talks with the strikers bring stories that are alike.

Average $5 a Week.

"Under such conditions the women and girls are forced to live in unlighted, unventilated rooms, sometimes four and five sleeping in the same room. They pay on an average $1 a week for their room. Their meals cost $4. A typical story of existing conditions is that of Lucy Taddonio of No. 329 East One Hundred and Seventh street.

Rush Baby M'Lean South; Apple Sauce Expert Treats Fever

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Vinson Walsh McLean, the hundred-million-dollar baby, is being rushed to Palm Beach on a special train because of a slight cold.

A woman expert in apple sauce makes up one of the entourage, and five nurses stand by ready to sooth his fever with his pet titbit. Young Vinson has been ailing slightly since his famous $10,000 Christmas tree party. Although the schedule called for the train to leave at midnight, it was held until four in the morning so the sleep Vinson had fallen into might not be disturbed.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The dinner of the Massachusetts State Automobile Association held at the Hotel Somerset last evening brought together a representative gathering of motorists.

President Lewis R. Speare had as guests General Francis Peabody, president of the Safe Roads Association; Colonel W. D. Sohier of the Massachusetts Highway Commission; Mayor Hatfield of Newton; President J. H. MacAlman of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association; President E. A. Gilmore of the Bay State Automobile Association; President J. J. McNamara of the Newspaper Club; A. G. Batchelder, George C. Diehl, Charles J. Glidden and S. S. Ballard, all connected with the A. A. A.

Almost every automobile association in New England was represented. The work of this organization was touched upon by President Speare, who takes great pride in the present condition of the club, it being in excellent condition to demand recognition in all matters of importance pertaining to motoring.

A. G. Batchelder of the three A's told of the work of the national body, which is today the largest amateur association in the world. Colonel Sohier called attention to the latest recommendation of the highway commission, not only to the regulation of motor trucks but pleasure vehicles as well, and the great need of means of protecting the highways from abuses.

George C. Diehl, chairman of the good roads committee of the A. A. A., called attention to the privisions of the Federal Aid bill on which the association has during the last two years made such great headway in Congress. He believes that the future will see an enactment of a law calling for federal aid in road construction.

The following statement was made by the Ford Motor Company today:

Rumors to the effect that the Ford Motor Company, whose great factory is located in Detroit, has been sold to the Standard Oil Company are absolutely without foundation. There have been no negotiations of this character, and, in fact, no negotiations with anyone for the sale of the company as a whole or any part of its stock.

Some newspapers have printed this story and in addition many letters and wires have been received from our dealers stating such rumors were in circulation. It is, therefore, desired to make as public as possible a statement authorized by an officer of the company that there is absolutely no foundation to this rumor.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

The Boston stock market was quiet at the start and a number of usually active issues were unchanged. Coppers suffered from the price uncertainties of the metal market and lower quotations for spot and futures in London. During the first half hour copper shares sagged, Chino declining 1⅝.

American Tobacco was one of the strongest issues on the New York list at the opening of the market there, scoring an initial gain of 2½. The list showed an irregular appearance and material declines were suffered by a number of leading issues. There was considerable activity in the coppers, the group showing declines. Amalgamated Copper and Utah Copper lost a point, while American Smelting sold off 1¼.

Canadian Pacific followed the lead of the London market, losing 1¾ on profit-taking. Among the other losses in the first half hour's trading was American Can ¼, Steel common ½, Union Pacific ½ to 1, Rock Island ⅛, Northern Pacific ⅝, St. Paul ⅜ and Consolidated Gas ⅛. The gains included Denver & Rio Grande preferred ⅜ to ¾, Texas Company 1, United States Rubber ¼, Southern Pacific ¼ and Missouri Pacific ⅛.

Atchison opened unchanged, but later gained ⅛. California Petroleum, after opening unchanged, lost ½.

The Curb was strong. Washington Oil sold up 5 points, and Union Bank advanced 7 points.

Americans in London were sluggish.

Copper Metal Situation.

London copper market opened weak and spot and futures were each 12s. 6d. lower.

A bear clique has been operating there for some time.

Regarding the situation in this country it is said: "Big producers' prices were maintained at the 17¾ cent level, but some cutting under this figure was indulged in for small tonnages. It was said that less than a million pounds constituted a sale at not far above 17 cents cash. Influence of such transactions upon the big buyers has not become marked, however.

"Independent producers have sold April copper down to around 17.60 cents, 30 days. These interests have become somewhat bearish on their situation and have protected their actions by statements that they look to see much lower prices before there has been a further large volume of copper sold."

Financial News in Brief.

The Washington Oil Company declared a dividend of $1 a share yesterday. This is the first dividend that has been paid by this company since dissolution of the old Standard Oil Company. In 1906 the company made a payment of 35 per cent. to shareholders.

A stock dividend of 100 per cent. was declared yesterday by the Manhattan Electrical Supply Company. This concern has common stock of $6,000,000. The regular semi-annual payments of 3 per cent. each on the common and preferred were also declared.

American Light & Traction shareholders will hold a special meeting on March 17 to authorize an increase in the common stock from $15,000,000 to $40,000,000.

A net surplus of idle cars of 17,058 is reported by the American Railway Association as of December 31 last. This compares with a net shortage of 34,392 on December 14.

Union Pacific directors held their regular meeting yesterday, without taking any definite action with regard to approving the disolution plan discussed by the company's executive committee with Attorney-General Wickersham on Wednesday. The board will hold another meeting on Monday, when definite action is likely to be taken.

The New York Curb Association's listing committee has admitted to quotation and listing 40,000 shares of MacAndrews & Forbes preferred stock.

The American Refrigerator Transit Company has bought 1,000 refrigerator cars.

Harriman & Co., New York bankers, announce that Thomas C. Shotwell will hereafter be associated with the firm as manager of their customers' department. Mr. Shotwell for a long time was financial editor of the New York American and a writer for the Boston AMERICAN.

American Calendar Is a Joy Forever; Get Your Copy in Time

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," wrote the poet Keats. That just tells why thousands of people are getting the 1913 Art Panel Calendars which the AMERICAN is giving away free. They're beautiful, artistic and well worth while. If you haven't obtained yours yet, you have a great joy in store when you do get one. Further, it will make an unusually fine decoration for your den, study or about any room in the house.

To get a calendar all you have to do is to sign the subscription blank printed elsewhere in the AMERICAN, and bring or mail it with the heading on the first page of the Comic Section of the Sunday AMERICAN, to the American Promotion Department at No. 5 Winthrop square.

The signed blank does not require any advance payment. You simply agree to accept from your carrier the Boston Sunday AMERICAN for a period of three months from the date of the first delivery. You pay for each paper when it is delivered. If sent by mail, the blank and clipping from the Comic Section must be accompanied by five cents for return postage.

Hold F. R. Shackleton in Crown Gem Theft.

SOUTHAMPTON — Francis Richard Shackleton, a brother of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the famous explorer, who was arrested in Portuguese East Africa in connection with the management of the estate of Lord Ronald Sutherland Gower, arrived here today in the custody of detectives. A RECORD EGG SALE.

The sale on Saturday last of 4500 dozen eggs at 21 cents per dozen, reported by C. D. The Shame of Our State—PURE FOOD Laws That Permit the Sale of POISONOUS Foods

Massachusetts was one of the first States to pass a Pure Food Act. Since then, practically every State, as well as the Federal government, has put pure food laws into effect.

From the vanguard, Massachusetts has dropped back until now this great State is at the end of the entire procession.

Instead of protecting the consumer, Massachusetts laws today PROTECT THE ADULTERATOR AND THE SWINDLING RETAILER AGAINST PROSECUTION.

A complete revision, and the passage of new and adequate laws, is demanded by every consideration of the health of the men, women and children of the Commonwealth.

Under the Massachusetts law, an adulterator, or the man who sells adulterated or drugged foods, is safe unless he "knowingly" committed his crime against the children of the State.

Under the Massachusetts law, the inspectors who enforce the law must serve notice by advertisement of their appointment. They must sound a warning—"Adulterators, take notice. I, John Smith, am after you. Look out." (Then the adulterator puts in a line of nice, pure samples of food to be handed the inspector when he calls at the store).

Under the Massachusetts law, when a sample of food is taken for analysis, a portion of that sample must be saved, and if an action is brought, this reserved portion must be given the defendant. The State must turn over its evidence to the man under prosecution.

THESE THREE LOOPHOLES TO THE ADULTERATOR SHOULD BE BLOCKED.

Massachusetts allows the use of harmless adulterants and harmless colors in food.

Harmless adulterants and harmless colors are without food value. Put into the body, they have the same effect as if you were to shovel ashes into your furnace instead of coal. They clog the body, just as the ashes clog the furnace grate.

They should be barred from use.

Massachusetts allows preservatives on fish and meat. These preservatives are often poisonous. They should also be BARRED from use.

Massachusetts allows harmless colors and cereal in sausage. Both are frauds and cheats and should be barred from use.

Massachusetts allows everything except alcohol and arsenic in candy. Varnish, talc, glue, glucose, salicylic acid, ethereal flavors, saccharin, boric acid, fat substitutes for chocolate and all "harmless" or poisonous matters should be barred from use.

Massachusetts allows condensed milk to be used to adulterate cream. This should be barred from use.

Massachusetts allows the use of copperas, sulphites and other poisonous substances in foods. They should be barred from use.

Massachusetts NEEDS A REAL PURE FOOD LAW—an act to guard the storage and sale of eggs; an act to guard the purity of ice cream, and establish a standard; an act to bar the use of saccharin in soft drinks—these are three reforms the health of the children of the State demands.

It is time Massachusetts took her place with those advanced States that absolutely bar all food adulterators, food swindlers, food druggers and poisoners, from their borders.

A Word to You, Mr. McCall

The Progressive party has filed through its representative, former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill, a bill, which, if immediately enacted into law, will enable the Legislature to know the preference of the people of this Commonwealth for the next United States Senator.

The bill provides that on the 6th day of next February the qualified voters shall convene at the polls and indicate their choice among the candidates for Senator.

The bill is within the letter of the law and is within the fundamental spirit of our government and of any government for and by the people. It is a sane, definite, possible and righteous proposal to prevent the State from being misrepresented during the next six years in the greatest deliberative body in the world.

Those who only tolerate popular government because they don't know how to get rid of it just now will cavil at this bill on the ground that it violates the spirit of the Federal Statute which requires that one ballot for United States Senator shall be taken every day until a choice has been made. Such a ballot can be taken and must be taken if the gentlemen of the Legislature, who have expressed their choice, stand by that choice and do not submit themselves to the log-rolling and coercion of the various interests who seek to control the next United States Senator. The Republicans are now deadlocked, and the Democrats have their own candidates. It is entirely legal to permit this situation to subsist until the 6th day of February next, when all the citizens of the Commonwealth can then make known their own choice.

It is especially the duty of Mr. McCall to urge his friends in the Legislature not to oppose this bill. He has declared in favor of the direct election of United States Senators and he is receiving the benefit of being considered a Progressive because he has declared in opposition to the Legislature any longer electing our Senators.

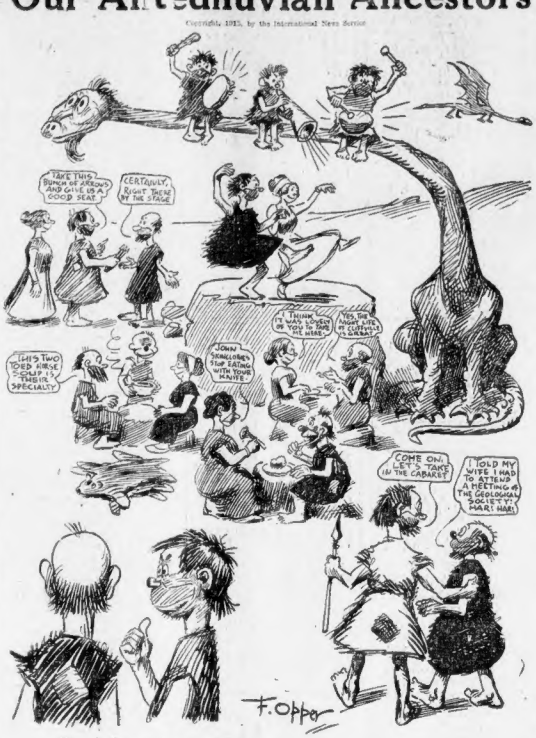

Now his managers are presenting the unseemly spectacle of a struggle to attain ninety-four votes in the Republican caucus. That ninety-four votes means an election to the United States Senate, although it is only ninety-four votes out of a total of two hundred and eighty men in the Legislature.

The Progressives are as much opposed to Mr. McCall as the Democrats, and the Progressive and the Democratic vote for the members of the Legislature exceeded the vote for the Republican members by more than eighty thousand. Therefore, Mr. McCall's managers are now attempting to elect him to the United States Senate by a vote of ninety-four men out of a total of two hundred and eighty, when the members of his own party in the Legislature were a minority in the whole State.

Thus Mr. McCall apparently proposes to accept a nomination, if he gets it, from ninety-four men out of a total of more than half a million. And yet Mr. McCall has said that he believes the whole people should elect their own Senators and that the Legislature cannot represent the sentiment of the State on this question.

Mr. McCall has a chance to show that he is a statesman and not a demagogue by the attitude which his friends take on this bill. No sincere man in his situation can possibly oppose it.

Dr. Parkhurst's Article —ON— Should a Judge Give His Sentence to Fit Character of Crime, or of the Accused Man Before Him?

Written for the Boston American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

WHAT a convicted criminal receives at the hands of the court will be an attempt at justice without any likelihood of its being absolute justice. This is written without any thought of impugning judicial integrity, but is involved in the nature of things, in the nature of man, both the man on the bench and the man in the prisoner's dock. The position of the judge is a difficult one, almost as difficult as that of the one whom the judge is there to sentence.

The only element of difficulty to which this article will refer is the following: The judge is supposed to grade his sentence as nearly as possible to the guilt of the party by whom the offence has been committed. Now, is the sentence designed to fit the character of the crime or the character of the criminal? If, for example, the convict is given five years, is that five years intended to measure up to the size of the offence, or to the amount of inherent depravity in the one who committed the offence? for neither of the two can be accepted as accurate index of the other.

Stole Only to Sustain Life, but Sentence Was 15 Years

Take the following instance, which occurred in a distant State and some years ago, but which has only recently been brought to the attention of the public.

A man of about thirty years was driven to the verge of starvation. To him the situation meant death or robbery. He asked himself, "Shall I steal or go to the river?" He tossed up a penny. Heads meant burglary, tails suicide. It turned up heads. That night he committed burglary. He was detected, convicted and given fifteen years. He was sentenced as a burglar, and he certainly was a burglar, so far as act was concerned, but in spirit and in the general tone of his character he was no more a burglar than I am, and this fact is certified to by his demeanor during the term of his incarceration and his behavior since his release. It is evident enough that it was not in him to commit the crime except at the impulse of starvation hunger.

How many are there who would not steal rather than die for the lack of the food that theft would procure?

The judge by whom the criminal was sentenced to fifteen years would doubtless have done the same or similar thing under the same circumstances. The act may have deserved fifteen years, but it does not follow that the man deserved fifteen years. This is not making light of crime; it is only indicating that what a man does is not necessarily a just measure of the man. If he had had friends they might have asked the attention of the court to the circumstances. It is a great mistake not to have either money or friends when one is brought to court. But even so, the judge would probably have insisted that burglary by night means a maximum of fifteen years and a minimum of ten.

Best Way to Approach Justice Is to Base Sentence on Act

It may be that it is not prudent to leave such matters to judicial discretion, and that while judges are human and fallible, and some of them hard-hearted, while others are too soft-hearted, the nearest approach to average justice will be secured by framing sentences that will fit the act rather than the man. In a world that is not ideal retail policies may be impracticable, but nevertheless average justice is not absolute justice, and only absolute justice is perfectly just.

If some men keep out of jail that ought to be in it, others spend long years in jail that ought to be out of it, life that would otherwise be useful becoming consequently profitless, and the felt injustice of it operating all the time to the enfeeblement of the convict's powers and the souring of his spirit.

This does not mean the demolition of jails and the turning of everybody loose upon the world. Invalids should go to the hospital and undomesticated animals, whether quadruped or biped, should be subjected to some order of restraint. Our single point of contention is this, that we are as yet very far from having arrived at the ideal treatment of those who transgress the laws.

More Intelligence and More Heart Needed in Treatment

That there needs to be both more intelligence and more heart in it; that a man's conduct may be a great deal worse than the man as well as a great deal better; that there is a terrific responsibility and accountability devolving upon the official who sits comfortably on the bench, well clad and well fed, and well housed, and who has the authority to reel out sentences of five, ten, thirty or fifty years to the untrained, hungry or broken down convicts who, while personally responsible for their misconduct, have been subjected to tests of which the judge has had no experience and to which, had he had the experience, he would very likely have succumbed.

PENNY POSTAGE AND PENSIONS FOR POSTAL EMPLOYES

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Within the past few years, more noticeably during the year 1912, several of our daily papers have agitated penny postage for letters.

Undoubtedly this cheap rate of postage would, in a small degree, financially benefit thousands of business houses and other patrons of the mail service, but consider our present postal card rate, our two-cent letter rate and the parcel post service which became effective January 1, 1913.

Can one consistently clamor for and make urgent demands for a lower postal rate until we have first interested ourselves in what can be done to benefit that corps of faithful postoffice employes, who, through their honor, untiring zeal and unswerving allegiance to duty, have been instrumental in building up this splendid system of postal service?

Would it not be better, instead of calling for cheaper rates, to lend our energies toward retaining the present rate, thereby placing the postoffice department in a position, financially, to provide a retiring pay system for its old employes worn out in faithful service?
